PREFACE.

1285121

THE present volume has grown out of the request of a relative, four years ago, to fill up some blanks in a Family Bible. How the response to that request grew from a letter into a pamphlet, and from a pamphlet into a volume; by what unthought-of study, correspondence, and visits to the old homes of the family, a labour of love has reached its present stopping-place, I need not detail to any who have had anything to do with genealogical research.

Some special acknowledgment, besides that given on each page, is due for co-operation in this work, without which I could have done comparatively nothing. Mr. CHARLES B. MOORE, of New York, has kindly added to his "Southold Index of 1698," (in itself a mine of genealogical material,) many letters and historical notes, and a transcript of all his MS. Index of 1775 relating to the name of Wells. My cousin, Mr. GEORGE E. SIBLEY, of the same city, has taken a large share of the labour involved in the work, and nearly all its pages bear witness to his patient and accurate research. To Mr. JOHN WARD DEAN, the accomplished Librarian of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, I am indebted for valuable assistance and direction. Among the largest contributors of unpublished material are the Rev. EURYSTHEUS H. WELLS, of Upper Aquebogue; JOSEPH WICKHAM CASE, Esq., of Southold, BENJAMIN F. WELLS, of Well-burgh, N. Y., Dr. ELMORE H. WELLS, of Meshoppen, Pa., and Miss SARAH M. WELLS, of Nashville, Tenn. But most of all, my thanks, and those of all interested in the work, are due to my brother, ROBERT P. HAYES, of Buffalo, who has made all the arrangements for the printing, and superintended and corrected the proof from first to last, with a care and judgment which have made the book attractive, and worthy of its purpose, in appearance, if not in contents. And in saying this, I do not forget our obligations to the Printers for their skill and patience in a kind of work testing both severely.

The numerous errors inevitable in such a work need no apology, and those of carelessness or wilful blindness, if such there be, admit of none. To the family for whom the book is printed, I hope it may plead its own excuse, first for venturing into print at all, and next for not awaiting a ten or twenty years' longer incubation before making its appearance.

PLAN OF NUMBERING.

THE INTEGRAL Figure after each name, beginning with Chapter II., p. 33, denotes the GENERATION in America; and the DECIMAL, the Number in that Generation in the order in which the names occur in the book.

Thus, William III.^{3.1} (p. 39) is the first one mentioned of the third generation, or grandchildren of William I. of Southold; and Mary^{4.80} (p. 272) the eightieth and last here given of the fourth generation, or his great-grandchildren.

CHAPTER I.

THE WELLS FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

THE English name WELLS appears to have two distinct derivations.

(1.) The Saxon well, a well or spring, from wellan, to spring, bubble up, or flow, and the kindred Danish wel and German quelle, is found in Domesday Book as "Guella," meaning there, apparently, a stream or rivulet flowing into the German Ocean, and applied to the ancient Norfolk seaport at its mouth.* No doubt many families of the name may find a like origin for their patronymic, in some John or Robert "of the Well"; and possibly the old cathedral city of Somerset, and other towns in England, have derived their appellation from the same familiar word.†

(2.) As a family name, however, it is more commonly derived through the Norman-French vai, a vale, and its plural vais or vaux, from the Latin vallis. VAL, VALS, VAUX, VALLIBUS, all with and without the prefix DE, are found in numerous records from the Norman Conquest of 1066 to the end of the fifteenth century, applied to families in almost every county in England, but mostly in Lincoln, Norfolk, Essex.

* Blomfield, Hist. Norfolk, 1808, IX. 282.

and Kent, and of French origin.* A little later we have WALLYS (1220), WELLYS (1475), WYLLYS (1463), WILLS, (these last two rare,) WELL, DE WELL (1401-89), WELLES, DE WELLES (1283), and finally WELLS, this last form as early as the beginning of the thirteenth century.† WELS appears to be Dutch, found at New York, 1678, and Leyden, 1723.‡

There is no doubt that the ancient cathedral city of Norwich, or its vicinity, was the birthplace of WILLIAM WELLS of Southold, the common ancestor of the Long Island families of that name. According to a Southold tradition of two centuries, he was the son of the Rev. WILLIAM WELLES, Rector of the Church of St. Peter Mancroft, 1598-1620, and Prebendary of Norwich Cathedral, 1613-20, whose tombstone in St. Peter's Church shows him to be descended from the Norfolk and Lincolnshire family known in England since the Conquest, and holding from 1299 to 1503, one of the most ancient baronies in the kingdom.

Hubert, Ranulf, and Robert, three sons of Harold de Vaux, a Norman baron, are said to have come into England about 1120, and settled, the two elder in Cumberland, and the youngest in Norfolk. About 1194, Adam, a grandson of Robert, holding the manor of Welles, near Alford, Lincolnshire, took the name DE WELLES.§ He appears to have died without issue, and to have been succeeded in his manor by his younger brother William, and he by his son William, and grandson Adam. The latter was summoned to Parliament, Feb. 6, 1299, as first Baron Welles*; was Constable of Rockingham Castle, and Warden of the Forest. His arms are described in a MS. Roll of Arms of 1308,† “Sire Adam de Welles, de or, a un Lion rampaund de sable, od la courve fourchee.” His successors in the Barony were

From some offshoot of this noble house was descended WILLIAM WELLES of Norwich, the father of William of Another peerage of the name, sometimes confounded with this,—Viscount Welles,—was conferred in 1487 by Henry VII. on his uncle, John Welles, s. of Leo, 6th Baron, by his second wife Margaret, widow of John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset, and by him gr. mo. of Henry VII. Southold. Such search as has been practicable in Norwich and the Heralds' College, gives no account of his parentage. He was born in 1566, ordained Priest about 1590, and in 1598 became Rector (or Minister) of St. Peter of Mancroft's Church, Norwich, of which Blomfield says:

“This Parish is a small ward of itself, and at the beginning of the Confessor's reign was uninhabited, being field only. That part now the market-place, was the Magna Crofta Castelli [Great or Outer Court of the Castle] and joining to the outward ditch thereof. Hence the church on the S. W. front of it is distinguished from the other churches of St. Peter in this city, by the name of Magna Crofta or “Mancroft.” At the latter end of the Confessor's time, it began to be inhabited, and in the reign of William the Conqueror was held by Ralph, Earl of Norfolk, who founded the church, which became a Rectory in the gift of Gloucester Abbey. . . . In 1581 it was conveyed to Trustees for the parishioners.”*

St. Peter's Church, begun in 1430, consecrated 1455, and thoroughly restored in 1860, is described as the largest parish church in the city, and with one exception (St. Mary Redcliff, Bristol), the finest in the kingdom; a nave and aisles of six bays and chancel of three, with transepts, and a lofty clerestory of equal height through the whole length, (212 feet,) giving with the massive tower of four stages at the west end, and the octagonal turret and spire S. E. of the chancel, quite a cathedral-like effect. †

* Blomfield, IV. The Magna Crofta and its church are now in the heart of the city.

† “The tower contains a peal of 12 bells, weighing 9½ tons. The clerestory has on each side 17 obtusely arched windows, filled with rich perpendicular tracery. The windows of the aisles are large and light. The west door is deeply recessed, with rich sculpture in its hollow mouldings. The interior of the church is imposing, the splendid stained glass in the high east window having a magnificent effect. The roof is supported by 14 slender clustered columns and lofty arches. . . . The old Font stands under a canopy supported by pillars. Near to it, at the west end of the N. aisle, is a piece of tapestry, much faded, of the Ascension, 1573. In the vestry is a portrait of the celebrated Sir Thomas

A friend says of a recent visit to the church,

“I found in his house near the door of the south aisle, the parish clerk and sexton, a queer old worthy, who told me he had been fifty years in the employment of the Church, most of the time as bell-ringer. He had a wholesome regard for venerable things,—like me, preferred what was old to what was new in the church, and did not speak of the recent repairs as a ‘restoration.’ He took me into the open space below the belfry tower, pointing to the long and grand vista through the nave, and the lofty ancient chestnut roof, and finally the great east window at the end of the fully open choir, covering its whole breadth and reaching to the roof, as ‘the finest view in any church in the world,’—and indeed it is very beautiful. We then went to the vestry, which is directly behind the altar, and he opened an ancient wooden box, iron-bound, and black with age, from which he produced the Parish Registers, beginning in 1538, and continuing to the present time.”*

In 1613, (Sept. 28,) Mr. Welles, being then S. T. B., and Chaplain to the Queen (Anne of Denmark), was appointed to the First Prebend.(called the Prebend of the Chancellor) in Norwich Cathedral. The Prebend had been granted to him on the next vacancy, as early as March 30, 1605.† It is one of five in the patronage of the Crown. His stall was the first on the N. side of the choir, next the Archdeacon’s, and then belonged to this Prebend, an arrangement now done away with, the Prebendaries taking their seats according to seniority. ‡

An incidental notice of the Prebendary is found in the will of Thomas Doughty of Norwich, Draper, Aug. 26,

He died May 26, 1620, at Norwich, and was buried May 30, † in the chancel and near the altar of his parish church, where his grave was marked until 1860, by a flat tombstone, now removed from its original place, but carefully preserved, as shown in the fac-simile here given, photographed from a very fine rubbing taken in the summer of 1876.‡ The loving inscription will be deemed in this day, perhaps, exaggerated in language, but it bears evident marks of sincerity, and tells something, certainly, of his character among those of his own day and generation.

"This Tomb is sacred to the learning, virtue, and memory of that most eloquent and beloved man, Mr. WILLIAM WELLES, Bachelor in Sacred Theology, Rector of this Church, and Prebendary of the Cathedral Church; who after thirty years spent in this famous city with the highest praise, in great sanctity of life and suavity of manners, together with notable and unwearied diligence in pastoral work,—full of good report, and beloved by all good men,—prematurely for the Church of God, but happily for himself, fell asleep in the Lord, in the certain hope of resurrection, May 26, A. D. 1620, in the 54th year of his age."

It appears then that his entire ministry of thirty years was spent in Norwich, very likely in the one Parish of which he was Rector twenty-two years. His "diligence in pastoral work" could hardly have been quickened by its emoluments, which are even at the present day but £87 a year. His private property, however, appears by his will to have been considerable.

The armorial bearings on his tombstone, described plainly by Blomfield, "WELLES, or, a Lion double quevée sable, in a bordure engrailed gules," correspond exactly to those of the first Baron Welles in 1308, except the "bordure," which may be a "difference" distinguishing a younger branch of the family. The value of the coat of arms thus displayed, as evidence of descent, can hardly be measured by the ideas and practice of this day in such matters. It is to be judged of (1) by the date of the monument, a day when heralds' "visitations" were still in full force, and the Court of the Earl Marshal by no means obsolete; (2) by the public and official character of the claim thus made, not, perhaps, by Prebendary Welles himself, but by those who must have known his ancestry; and (3) by the remarkable circumstance that the "Lion double quevée," the principal charge in the arms of the Barons Welles, was never borne by any other family of the name in the kingdom.*

The will of Prebendary Welles, dated May 20, 1620, (six

* I give this on the authority of two of the present officers of the Royal College of Arms, George H. Rogers-Harrison, Esq., Windsor Herald, and Edward Bellasis, Esq., Blue Mantle Pursuivant. The latter adds his opinion of the value of the arms on Prebendary Welles' tomb as evidence of his descent, agreeing with the note subjoined, by a legal friend who has given special attention to the subject:—

"This sort of evidence of pedigrees is recognized by the Courts in all cases prior to the year of the last Herald's Visitation in 1686, in which year the correction of usurpations was completed. This principle was fully settled in the Chandos Peerage case. The ground of the admission of such evidence is that 'by the assumption of a particular bearing, the party must have meant to affirm that he was connected in that manner with the family to which such bearing belonged,' (1 Phillips on Evidence, 223.) And it is also declared by the same text-writer that the claim of Sir Michael Blount to the Barony of Mountjoy in Q. Elizabeth's time, turned almost wholly upon the arms in a window of Iver in Bucks, set up in the reign of Henry VII. And other trials in the Courts have established the like doctrine." (G. E. S.)

days before his death,) gives to his wife Elizabeth, "his messuage in St. Peter Mancroft" for life, and after her, the same to "John Welles his [eldest] sonne," and if John left no issue, then to "his sonne William Wells;" to Susan Wells, his daughter, his "messuage and house in Heigham; Norfolk," with rent charge to his wife till Susan's majority; to his daughter Elizabeth, when twenty years of age, other lands, till then given to his wife Elizabeth. A further bequest is made to a daughter Anne. The will is recorded (in an old legal handwriting like that of the will of Shakspeare) in six closely-written pages (100-105) of the wills proved in the Consistory Court of the Bishopric of Norwich, A. D. 1620; and the record is now preserved in the District Court of Probate, a modern brick building against the cloisters of the Cathedral. Annexed to the will is a schedule of his property. The two forms of the name, "Wells" and "Welles," appear to be used indifferently both in the will and the Parish Records. The copy of the signature to the will is "Welles." *

In the Register of "Christninges" in St. Peter Mancroft we find:—

"Anno Dom. 1604. [Evidently old style, the next date after March 17, 1604, being April 19, 1605.] Feb^y 10. Will^m ye sonne of Mr. Will^m Wells, pbr. of this parish, and Eliz^h his wife."

"Anno Dom. 1607. Nov. 15. Mary y^e daughter of Mr. William Wells, prh. of this parish and Elizabeth his wife."*

From the will and records taken together, the children of the Prebendary and his wife Elizabeth would appear to be nearly as follows:—

* Notes by Josiah Pierce, Esq., at Norwich, Feb. 21, 1876.

Of these, "William" is undoubtedly the younger "sonne William Wells" named in the will of 1620. According to family tradition, he is also the William Wells, who, educated in England as a lawyer, came from Norwich or its vicinity to America in 1635-40, and in the latter year, or soon after, became the first founder of Southold, L. I., next to the Rev. John Youngs. Of the probability of this tradition the reader can form his own conclusion from the facts given in this and the next chapter. It is to be noted, (1) that it is contemporary with the widow and children of William of Southold, who must have known something of his parentage; and (2) that it has been handed down to this day, independently of any reference to English authorities, as is shown by its representing the father of William of Southold to have been "William Wells, Dean of Norwich," a title much more familiar to the Southold Colonists and their descendants than that of Prebendary. I add in a note some other points in the case as they appear to me.*

* I. Identity of Name. There is abundant evidence that the two forms "Wells" and "Welles" were used indifferently, in Prebendary Welles' time, as in his own Registers (see p. 14 above) and the record of his will; by William of Southold (p. 19, 21), his widow, and others of his day (p. 27-8-9, 32). In fact, until the last century, all proper names varied in orthography very much according to "the taste and fancy of the speller."

II. Birth. William of Southold may have come with others of the L. I. colonists, from Lynn, Hingham, or Southwold; but he was undoubtedly born in Norfolk. His tombstone (see p. 29) says "aged 63" in 1671, making the year of his birth 1608, while "Will^m y^e sonne of Mr. Will^m Wells" was baptized Feb. 10, 1605. The inscription, written and cut probably as early as 1700, by persons unknown, was re-cut a few years ago (see p. 31), and there may be an error in estimating his age (not unusual in old tombstones), or in the cutting or re-cutting (3 for 5 or 6).

III. Parentage. Mr. Charles B. Moore, who, with the late William H. Wells of Southold, investigated carefully the various traditions in regard to William of Southold, without being aware then of the existence of Prebendary Welles, calls the former in his Southold Index of 1698, "supposed son of the Rev. William Wells, Dean of Norwich;" and adds in a MS. note, "He was undoubtedly the son of some noted clergyman." To me, both the coincidence and the discrepancy between the traditional "Dean" and the actual "Prebendary" of Norwich, furnish a very strong evidence of their identity. The discrepancy would have been impossible, had the tradition been of late origin, or derived from English books; nor is there any probable motive for the fabrication of such a story.

IV. Education and After Life. The younger son of the Prebendary, left at the age of fifteen to the care of his mother and elder brother, and without inheritance, would be likely to receive just such an education, general and professional, as William of Southold had in England (p. 20); and as likely to seek his fortune in the New World, on coming to the prime of manhood in the disastrous reign of Charles I. Nor would it be at all strange if he, though the son of a Cathedral dignitary, should have become a Nonconformist, even in England, in that day of changes, bitter partizanship, and gathering storms in Church and State. There is no evidence, indeed, that William of Southold left England as a Nonconformist, much less that he or his fellow-colonists of Long Island were strictly Puritans.* The nonconforming clergy and laymen, it must be remembered, claimed, however mistakenly, to be the true representatives of the Church of England; not, like the "Pilgrims" of Plymouth, separatists from her communion, though time and distance combined with their own errors and those of their opponents to make them such in the end.†

* In saying therefore that the Rev. John Youngs was of "Puritan" principles (p. 17), I used the word carelessly, I confess, in its popular, not its true historical sense; though his conduct to John Booth (p. 272) savors of Puritanism.

† The first distinct trace of William of Southold in America is at Lynn, Mass., in 1638; and this date is therefore the initial point of the American history of the family. In mentioning below (Ch. II. p. 18-20) George Wells as a settler at Lynn and possible relative of William, I followed Lewis (Hist. Lynn) and Savage (Geneal. Dict.) in what appears from the Southampton Town Records to be an error; the name of this George being really "Welby" or "Welbe." See Howell's Hist. Southampton, L. I., pp. 15, 18, 21, 27, 48, 310-13; where also my statement (Ch. II. p. 17) that Southold "was probably the beginning of English settlement on Long Island," is disproved by the fact that Southampton was settled in June, instead of October, 1640. (Aug. 16, 1878.)

CHAPTER II.

WILLIAM WELLS I. OF SOUTHOLD.

IN September, 1640, according to local tradition, and certainly not far from that time, a party of emigrants, mostly well-to-do men of good families in Norfolk and Suffolk, England, began the settlement of the little village of SOUTHOLD, on the long, narrow peninsula which forms the north-eastern extremity of Long Island. The tradition names thirteen heads of families, all save one with wives and children; but though all these were early settlers, some did not reach Southold till long after 1640, and others were certainly not heads of families in that year. The leader of this little colony, which was probably the beginning of English settlement on Long Island, was the Rev. John Youngs, a clergyman of the Church of England, but of Puritan principles, and after leaving England, a Congregationalist in practice. He, and several of his fellow-colonists, had come to New England several years before this, and they undoubtedly formed themselves into a religious society under his direction, in New Haven, before beginning the settlement of Southold.*

* The Rev. John Youngs had been curate in St. Margaret's, Reydon, near the seaport of SOUTHWOLD, Suffolk, and was probably nephew of the Rev. Christopher Youngs, whose Vicarage included both these places. The latter doubtless furnished the name, as well as some of the settlers of the Long Island village, which, however, is generally called "South hold" in early records, and by old inhabitants. In 1643 it was recognized as part of the New Haven colony, under its Indian name of "Yenycot" or "Yennyecok." Gardiner's Island had been purchased, but not settled, in 1639, and Southampton was begun later in 1640.

WILLIAM WELLS is generally named first (after the Rev. John Youngs) among these early settlers of Southold. It is probable, but not certain, that he was a member of Mr. Youngs' New Haven congregation, and one of those who first landed at the beautiful beach of Southold Bay, known for two centuries as "Hallock's Point." We find that one William Wells sailed from London, June 10, 1635, in the True Love of London, "for the Bermudas;" and one Richard Wells in the Globe, Aug. 7, the same year, for "Virginia."* Three years later, 1638, Richard, George, and William Wells are found among the early settlers of Lynn, Mass. The first, who was undoubtedly the passenger of the Globe, soon went to Salisbury, Mass., became a "deacon" and prominent citizen, and died there s. p., July 17, 1672.† George removed in 1640 to Southampton, L. I., with the earliest settlers of that place, and I find no further trace of him.‡ William is mentioned in the Colonial Records of Massachusetts, Sept. 7, 1641, as being "enjoyed in £10" to answer to a charge of "oppression," and we hear no more of him at Lynn;§ but in the Town Records of Southampton, L. I., March 15, 1643, "William Wells, Gent.," is named as present in court when Thomas Halsey was censured for

The tradition as to the early settlers is given very fully in "Griffin's Journal," N. Y., 1856. See also Thompson's Hist. Long Island, I. 374, seq.: Moore's Southold Index: Savage, Geneal. Dict. I. 489, II. 465, IV. 672: Hollister, Hist. Conn. I. 113: N. Haven Col. Records.

The real destination of both the True Love and the Globe was probably New England, their passengers being found soon after in Massachusetts, New Haven and Rhode Island. See references above.

I infer that William of Southold was in New England perhaps as early as 1635; at Lynn in 1638; at New Haven and Southold 1639-40, returning to Lynn the next year, perhaps to forward the great emigration of 1640-1 to Long Island, the strong opposition to which in Massachusetts may possibly have been the real cause of the charge of "oppression" (whatever that may mean) for which he was "enjoyed;" at Southampton, with the Lynn settlers of that place, and in New York, 1643-6; and permanently settled at Southold before 1649. It seems also likely that he was a relative of George, and perhaps of Richard Wells; though he cannot have been brother to either of them, unless the well-founded Southold tradition of his parentage be disproved. It is to be noted that he was not one of the Lynn settlers of Southampton in 1640.

The names of the first two signers are in the original obliterated with ink, (probably on the payment of the note) so that the characteristic autograph of William of Southold cannot be certainly identified. "Smith," which the translator has marked doubtful, may be "Sayre." "Haarcks" is certainly for "Harcher." Sayre and Harcher (or Harker) were both early at Southampton.

The earliest record I find of him at Southold is the following:

At General Court, New Haven, May 30, 1649. "Mr. Wells being questioned about some land he had received of some Indians on Long Island by way of gift, in which Mr. Odell of Southampton had a part, and himself did draw a deed, wherein the land was passed over from the Indians to them, which is contrary to an order made in this Jurisdiction, against which carriage the Court showed their dislike. But Mr. Wells doth now before the Court fully resign up all his interest in that land to the jurisdiction, and will be ready to give a deed to declare it, when it shall be demanded of him."*

The purchase of "Mattatuck and Aquabouke" from the Indians was accepted this same Court, and the fee simple of Southold, hitherto held by New Haven, was made over to the inhabitants, New Haven retaining jurisdiction until her union with Connecticut in 1662.†

We find him here acting as a lawyer, for which profession he had been educated in England. The Southold tradition to this effect is fully confirmed by his public acts, by the offices held by him, by the legal records and documents in his handwriting (which is quite plainly the peculiar

*In possession of Mr. J. Albert Wells of New York. On the fly-leaf is written, “William Wells his book given to him by his Mother this 27 of ffebruara

Mr. Wells appears to have been, in fact, the one legal authority of Southold until his death; and both his widow and his younger son (the elder dying in the prime of life) seem to have inherited some of his reputation among the people for wisdom in matters of law.

Two notices of him are found in the Colonial Records of 1653.

General Court. "Letter from Mr. Wells of Southold, complaining of sundry high miscarriages of John Youngs;" who is to be called to account, but the Court, learning that he is imprisoned "at the Duch," send a letter to the "Duch Governor" ordering (or perhaps requesting) "that he be not released, but delivered to the Court at New Haven."*

Mr. Wells was at this time a Deputy to the General Court from Southold. The John Youngs here mentioned was "Colonel John," son of the clergyman, an active, influential, erratic and turbulent man, often engaged in public business, and as often in trouble, till his death in 1698.

General Court, 1653. "Mr. Wells of Southold sent in a petition to be freed from all publique service in this jurisdiction hereafter, which the Court saw no cause to grant."†

Both the request and its reception are a curious illustration of early New England politics.

The prefix of "Mr.," by which he is invariably designated in the Colonial Records, implies much more than our present customs would suggest. The following from Hollister's Connecticut (I. 424) is quite to the point:

"The prefix of 'Master' (Mr.) embraced clergymen, and planters of good family and estate who were members of the General Court; those bred up at a university, and those of sufficient education to manage the general affairs of the Colony, either in a civil or ecclesiastical way, and who had been sufficiently well born. Comparatively few of the representatives from the several towns, even though they might be returned year after year, were honoured with this title. To be called Master, or to have one's name recorded by the Secretary with that prefix, two hundred years ago, was a more certain index of the rank of the individual, as respects birth, education, and good moral character, than any one of the high-sounding appellations with which many men in our day are content to cajole others. It may be observed, by reference to our colonial records, that there were scores of men of good family and in honourable stations, who still did not possess all the requisite qualities of masters. It was seldom that young men, of whatever rank, were called masters."

He must have been in "publique service" the next year, 1654, as two years afterwards (May 28, 1656) he is allowed £3 5s. for expenses in going to New Haven in 1654 on public business.* He was Deputy to the General Court of New Haven from 1657 to 1661; Constable of Southold in 1657-9, and Recorder (or Town Clerk) in 1660 and afterwards. John Lyon Gardiner thus describes the duties of these offices in the eastern towns of Long Island.†

"Their public officers were few; three magistrates who were called Townsmen [also Deputies, and elsewhere Representatives and Selectmen, the legislative and judicial functions being combined] were chosen annually. Their oath of office points out their duty; it was as follows:

"'You being chosen by the Court for the careful and comfortable carrying on of the affairs of this Town, do here swear by the Name of the Great and Everliving God, that you will faithfully, and without respect of persons, execute all such laws and orders as are or shall be made and established by this Court, according to the trust committed to you during this year for which you are chosen, and until new ones be chosen, if you remain among us, so help you God.'

* N. H. Col. Rec. 1656, p. 173.

† Notes on East Hampton, L. I., 1798. Doc. Hist. N. Y. I. 679. J. L. G. was one of the well-known family of Gardiner's Island.

“ A Recorder and Constable were the only other public officers chosen: their oath points out their duty, and is, mutatis mutandis, similar to the above. The Constable was always a reputable citizen, and of great authority. He, by law, moderated the General Court. The Recorder, or Secretary, not only recorded all orders of the General Court, but the decisions of the magistrates, and by a vote passed in 1656, the depositions of witnesses in trials at law, for which he was allowed a stated price, as were the Magistrates and Constable. Their trials were sometimes with a jury, but mostly without.”

In 1658-9, Mr. Wells, as one of the Deputies of Southold, repurchased of New Haven the plantation of “ Mattatuck and Aquabouke ” (Mattituck and Aquebogue) for £7.* In 1659 he “ informs the Court of the proposal of a neighbour to sell land to a Quaker, which is forbidden.” This appears to have been in pursuance of his duty as a Magistrate, under the intolerant laws of the Puritan regime, and may have some connection also with the following record in 1660 :

“ We whose names are underwritten, inhabiting on the neck of land commonly called Hashamammock ” [agree that any one desiring to remove] “ shall put in such neighbour as the other inhabitants living with him shall approve of.
“ Copy by Will. Wells, Recorder.” †

In this year, 1660, he is appointed as first Deputy of Southold, with John Youngs, to administer the oath to the others. The Deputies to hold Court once a quarter, if need require.‡ In the same year we find him acting as attorney at New Haven, and arbitrator at Southold.§ In 1661, Mr. Wells being “ Assistant Magistrate,” an action of slander was brought against Lieut. John Budd by Deputy John Youngs. It appeared that the slander was against the whole Court, and that Mr. Wells had used means to reclaim him by his son. John Budd acknowledged the slander, and Mr. Wells, "not willing to bring further trouble upon him," "conferred with him" till he professed penitence. The Court thereupon order him to "make up with Mr. Wells." *

The union of New Haven and Connecticut under the name of the latter Colony, in 1662, was strongly opposed by Mr. Wells, who declined the appointment of freeman of Connecticut offered him in that year, and was in consequence accused at Hartford, May 14, 1663, of "revolting." † But on the conquest of New York from the Dutch, the Plantations of Long Island being included in the Duke of York's Patent, the jurisdiction hitherto exercised by Connecticut and New Haven over the three towns of Suffolk County was relinquished by the joint act of Gov. Nicolls, Gov. Winthrop and others, Dec. 1, 1664. ‡

Gov. Nicolls gained at the outset the good will both of the Dutch and English in his new and wide jurisdiction. By the former he is described as "A wise and intelligent Governor;" by the latter, as a refined and scholarly man, excelling all his New England neighbours in liberality in matters of conscience and religion. § He certainly displayed both wisdom and liberality in appointing to Government offices representatives of all the various classes of inhabitants in the Province. The Dutch burgomasters and schepens of the City were retained; and of the four persons named by the Governor, and appointed by the Crown, as his Council,—Robert Needham, Thomas Delaval, Thomas Topping, and WILLIAM WELLS,—the two latter were residents of Suffolk County, though Topping had perhaps come recently from Milford, Ct.* This Council, with the Governor as its Head, constituted the Supreme Court of the Province, and was in fact, though not exactly in name, the legislative as well as judicial authority.† How long Mr. Wells continued a member of it I have not learned. In February, 1665, he, with Col. Youngs, represented Southold in a Convention of Deputies assembled by the Governor at Hempstead, to adopt a code of laws for the Province. The Code of Laws, though amended and accepted by the Deputies, (not without some objections to certain points in which it differed materially from the Connecticut Charter and Code,) was drawn up by the Governor, with the help of his Council, and after a careful study of the laws in force in the several New England Colonies. We should be glad to know what share the legal training and experience of Mr. Wells had in the preparation of these statutes, which, under the title of "His Royal Highness's," or "the Duke's Laws," were in force for many years, and are certainly far in advance of their day in some things.‡ On the adjournment of the Hempstead Convention, "Councillor William Wells" was appointed by the Governor "High Sheriff of New York Shire on Long Island," comprising the Eastern half of the Island, or what is now Suffolk County,—an office which he held until 1669.§ This is his latest public service of which I have found any record.

He married first, as early as 1653, and perhaps before 1650, BRIDGET, widow of HENRY TUTHILL of Southold. Her first husband, a grandson of John Tuthill, of Saxlingham Nethergate, Norfolk, and son of Henry and Alice, of Thorston, in the same county, came with her to Hingham, Mass., in 1637, and thence removed to Southold as early as 1644.* His brother John was doubtless among the first settlers of 1640. Henry and Bridget Tuthill left two children, John, b. 1635, and Elizabeth. The mother appears to have had no issue by her second marriage with William Wells; and it was probably her decease in or before 1654 which brought John and Elizabeth Tuthill under Mr. Wells' guardianship, May 31, 1654, and explains the following entry on the Records of that year:

“ Upon some question propounded to the Court concerning Mr. Wells his children, which were Henry Tuthill's of Southold, it is ordered that what evidence can be procured further concerning the children's portions, should be speedily sent to the Governor at New Haven; and if Mr. Wells should remove from Southold, that so much of his estate be securied as may answer for the portions appointed.”†

Soon after this (probably on coming of age, in 1656) the son, John Tuthill, executed a release to Mr. Wells, for his right and interest in the estate of Henry Tuthill, his late father, deceased, and Bridget Tuthill, his mother, also deceased, which came into the hands of his father-in-law, William Wells, by marriage of his mother; also his right and interest in whatever was given him by his father's brother, John Tuthill.‡ In 1660 a similar release was executed by William Johnson, who had married the daughter, Elizabeth, for her share of her parents' property.§

He married second, probably about 1654, MARY, or “Maric,” as she herself wrote it, whose family name is said to be YOUNGS. The date of the marriage I infer from the fact that his oldest daughter, Bethia, must have been born about 1655, and was, in all probability, the child of this second wife;* and also from the order of the General Court quoted above (1654), which seems likely to have some connection with the second marriage as well as the decease of the first wife. It is much more difficult to ascertain the value of the tradition which calls the second wife Mary "Youngs." Thus far I have found nothing to throw any light on the question of her family.†

William Wells died at Southold, Nov. 13, 1671.‡ On the same day he executed a deed, evidently in place of a will, conveying his entire estate to his wife Mary, for herself and their children, in the following words, which we copy verbatim from the Town Records of Southold.§

* Bethia Wells m. before 1680, Capt. Jonathan Horton. She is said by the "Salmon Records" to have been æt. 80 at her decease in 1733, which would fix her birth in 1653. These "Salmon Records" were a private, yet semi-official register kept for many years, at first by William Salmon, afterwards by other members of the 2d Congregational Society of Southold. Though generally accurate, it often errs in over-estimating ages, especially of old persons, known to the writer only by report. The dates of birth of the other children of William I. and Mary Wells will show the grounds of my probable conclusion as to Bethia's. In regard to her parentage, Mr. Moore says (in a letter of Oct. 29, 1875), "that Bethia was not a sister of John Tuthill, I gather from a general study of the whole, without being able to tell you from memory, perhaps but a small part of the data that influenced me."

† She can hardly have been Mary, the sister of the Rev. John Youngs, (who according to Savage (I. 277) is said to have m. Wm. Brown, of Salem, and d. 1636,) or his daughter Mary, who was b. 1631, and more prob. m. Edward Petty, of Southold. The tradition may have arisen from the fact that Wm. Wells' daughter Mary became Youngs by marriage. It comes to me from the family of Capt. Benj. Wells. of Southold, a source entitled to much respect,—but how ancient and well-founded it is I do not know.

In the old Burial Ground of Southold, near the edifice (Presbyterian) which occupies the site of the first meeting house, and not more than ten or twelve yards from the west end of the Cemetery, is the tomb of William Wells, a substantial structure of brick and covered with cement, and now (1876) after the lapse of two centuries, in perfect preservation, thanks to the reverent care of his descendant in the sixth generation, the late William H. Wells, of Southold. The top of the tomb is a single slab of dark brown stone, five feet by two and a half, and four or five inches in thickness, completely filled by the curious inscription, a facsimile of which is here given, photographed from the rubbing taken by me Oct. 13, 1875.

William Wells' "Home lot," and probably his residence, was on the ground now occupied by the one hotel of Southold, on the N. W. angle of the Main street with that leading to the railway station. A number of deeds to him and by him are on record, showing that he must have held considerable real estate in Southold and the neighbouring plantations. In the earliest "Rate List" of Southold, 1675,* I find the following property inherited by his wife:

This second wife Mary, left at his decease in charge of five, perhaps six children, married in 1678–80 Thomas Mapes, one of the early settlers of Southold, by whom she had no issue; and died in April, 1709, æt. about 90. She is described by Mr. Moore as “an extraordinary woman,” not only for those qualities of energy, courage and endurance, called forth by the pioneer life of New England and New York, but for learning and business capacity unusual in women of her day and place.

Her second husband, “Goodman Mapes,” though invested with various civil offices, seems to have entrusted the preparation of his legal records and documents chiefly to her knowledge and skill, as they are generally found in her fair handwriting.*

William Wells I. seems to have been fitted by natural force of character, as well as by birth and education, for a leader in the little colony to which the best part of his life was given. The Southold traditions about him are many, but mostly too wild and vague to be worth repeating. That he was a man of deeply religious character seems probable from his whole colonial life as well as from the inscription on his tomb. He was a leading member of the first religious society at Southold, which, though Congregational, had a Pastor in English orders as long as he lived.†

His children were seven, perhaps eight, all by the second wife. Two daughters died in infancy, and two sons and three, possibly four daughters, survived him.

A. Page 18. In a curious Order in Council, a copy of which I found (after this Chapter was printed,) among the papers of the late Rev. Dr. BALLARD, of Brunswick, Me., the True Love is mentioned among several vessels which were to be "suffered to depart on their intended voyage to New England," their Masters having given bonds in £100 each for strict compliance with the regulations concerning emigrants. These rules prohibit blasphemy or profanity under severe penalties,—enjoin the Daily Service on board ship,—forbid the embarkation of persons who have not taken the oaths of allegiance and supremacy,—and direct a return to be made of actual passengers. The Order may be seen in full in N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg. IX. 265. It is dated Feb. 28, 1634 (1633 O. S.), so the True Love probably made one or more voyages under it, before that of June, 1635.

CHAPTER III.

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM II. OF SOUTHOLD.

F the five, or six, children of William Wells I., who survived him, married, and left descendants, two only were sons,—William II., and Joshua. These two founded the two branches of the family bearing the name of Wells at this day. I give here first the elder of these lines of descent.

WILLIAM II., ²⁴ b. Southold, May 5, 1660, was a boy of eleven at his father's death, commended in his will, as we have seen, to special consideration in the management of the property by the widow, as the "oldest sonne." In the "Rate List" of 1683, however, the brothers are assessed for nearly equal sums,—William at £85, and Joshua at £81. Their mother was then wife of Thomas Mapes, who is rated on the same list at £244.* William II. resided on "Quash Neck," and d. Southold, Oct. 17, 1696, aet. 36 y. 5 mo. His grave is near his father's in the old Southold churchyard; but the inscription on the headstone would seem to indicate that the exact place of it, as well as the day of his death, was unknown to those who erected the stone: †

William Wells II. m. Southold, June 1, 1681, ELIZABETH TUTHILL, second child and eldest daughter of John Tuthill II. and Deliverance King. William King, father of Deliverance, b. Eng. 1607, came from Weymouth, Dorset, to Salem, Mass., in the Abigail, 1635; was admitted freeman of Mass., 1636. Savage quaintly says that “in the Antinomian perversity of 1637, he was one of the five men in Salem required to be disarmed for the public safety; and in the more violent ragings of spiritual insubordination, in 1659, his Christian kindness to the Quakers exposed him to whipping and banishment. From the latter he was restored on repentance in 1661.

William King had at Salem, by his wife Dorothy, four children, Mehetabel, John, Deliverance, and Samuel, and perhaps others.† The second daughter, Deliverance, bapt. at Salem Oct. 31, 1641, m. at Southold, Feb. 17, 1658, John Tuthill II.‡ Of their four sons and five daughters, three, as already stated, married children of William Wells I. Elizabeth, the wife of William II., was b. Southold, Jan. 19, 1661,§ and surviving her husband, perhaps m. II. John Goldsmith of Southold, c. 1698. Deeds are on record from William II. and his mother to this John Goldsmith, at Cutchogue, 1684; to Thomas Osman, at Aquebogue, 1688-9; and to Jonathan and Bethia Horton (his sister,) in 1695, of 18 acres.¶

The children of William II. were three sons and one daughter.

Of the two elder sons and their descendants, I give in this Chapter such account as I have been able to find, each branch by itself, not by generations merely; and shall follow the same plan with the younger branches of the family, i. e. the descendants of Henry I., third son of William II., and those of the six sons of Joshua I., second son of the first William.

WILLIAM III.,^{2,1}

ELDEST SON OF WILLIAM II.,^{2,4}

Born, Southold, March 30, 1683, died Feb. 7, 1762. He inherited, as we have seen, his father's residence on "Quash Neck." A quit-claim deed from him to Joshua Wells, 1703, and a deed to John Goldsmith of a "fresh meadow," 1708, are on record. He married, in 1703, ESTHER (OR HESTER) HOMAN, dau. Mordecai and Esther Homan of Southold, b. 1681, d. Jan. 11, 1754.* They had nine children,—four sons and five daughters.

1. Maud,^{9,29} b. Nov. 4, 1872.
2. Jessie,^{9,30} b. June 7, 1874.

Since the first part of this chapter was printed, I find that I may be in error in saying (p. 39) that "one only" of the four sons of William III.,^{3,1} "is now represented by descendants." CRAVIT,^{4,4}* the second son, had at least three daughters in addition to the three children named on p. 40. and perhaps left a son, of which latter, however, I have as yet no trace. The list of his children, so far as known to me, should be as follows:

1. William, ^{5,3}	b. 1740, d. 1741.
2. Sarah, ^{5,4}	received into communion at Mattituck, 1767.
3. Deborah, ^{5,5}	bapt. at Mattituck, 1752, d. 1774.
4. Esther, ^{5,6}	bapt. " June 16, 1754.
5. Phoebe, ^{5,7}	bapt. " Oct. 16, 1757.
6. Elizabeth, ^{5,8}	bapt. " 1759, d. 1774.

Cravit Wells was received into communion with the "Church at Mattituck," Jan. 21, 1776. His wife's family (REEVE, as the name is usually written in Southhold,† not Reeves) appear to have had their residence at Mattituck.‡

The descendants of the eldest son of William II.^{2,1} still cluster about the original hive of the family in America. With them,—that is, in the villages of Southold, Mattituck.

* Mr. Moore suggests the Latin "Creavit" as the origin of this curious name. Perhaps it is as probably the English "Crave-it," as the name is actually written in some old records.

† Howell's History of Southampton (first seen since Ch. II. and III. were in type).

‡ Mattituck Ch. Records, communicated by Charles B. Moore, Esq., who adds: "James Reeve, b. 1709, d. 1791, (bro. or cousin of Sarah, wife of Cravit Wells,) was an early deacon at Mattituck,—probably son of Capt. James and Deborah (Index of 1698, p. 111),—and a large land holder, deriving much of his estate from his great-grandfather, William Purrier, of Olney, Bucks, Eng., (see note, p. 42, above, and Southold Index, p. 32,) one of the first colonists. The pioneer families of Wells, Mapes, Reeve and Purrier were closely connected by marriage and otherwise, and were all, at an early day, comparatively wealthy, having each about 500 acres of 'wild land' in Mattituck and further west, in addition to their more central Southold property."

Cutchogue and Greenport, all in the same ancient township,—are the descendants of the oldest son of Abner,^{4,20} youngest son of Henry I.,^{3,3} and of Fregift,^{3,18} youngest son of Joshua I.^{2,6} In the adjoining town of Riverhead, originally a part of Southold, are the posterity of Henry II.,^{4,15} eldest son of Henry I.,^{3,3} and of five of the six sons of Joshua I.,^{2,6}—mostly farmers, and holding in the aggregate a very great amount of landed property. But besides this, there is perhaps hardly a town or village in Suffolk County, comprising the greater part of Long Island, in which the family of William I., the Colonist of 1640, is not represented at this day.

CHAPTER IV.

JOHN I., SECOND SON OF WILLIAM II.

IGIVE a separate chapter to this second branch of the descendants of William II., (contrary to the intention expressed on page 39,) having received fuller accounts of it since the last sheet was printed.

JOHN II.,^{3,2} second son of William II.,^{2,4} was born at Southold, Jan. 31, 1689, and died at Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., date unknown, but probably 1740 to 1760. He removed from Southold to Goshen, with his family, before 1730, and left there numerous descendants. He married, I., as early as 1715; and II., in 1722, widow MARTHA CASE, who d. June 2, 1723; * and he may have married again. The first wife, whose name I have not found, was the mother at least of one son and one daughter; and he left three other sons, and perhaps daughters, of whom I have no account.

CHAPTER V.

HENRY I. AND HIS ELDEST SON.

HENRY,³³ first of the name in this family, and third son of William Wells II. of Southold, was born at Southold, Feb. 7, 1690, and died in the same town, Jan. 18, 1760. I have no other record of his life of threescore and ten years than is found in several deeds by him, noted in Mr. Moore's Index of 1698, (p. 129) and in his will, which is of some interest both for its date and contents.*

“ In the name of God, Amen. the 24 day of December in the year of our Lord Christ 1755 I Hennery Wells of the town of Southold and County of Suffolk in the Province of New York, Yeoman, being in health of body and of perfect minde and memory, thanks be given unto God but calling to minde the mortality of my body and that itt is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordaine this my last will and testement—that is to say principally and first of all I give and recommend my soul into the hands of God y^t gave itt, and my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in descent Christian burial att the discretion of my excutors hereafter named.

Henry I. is on the list of Freeholders of Suffolk County, 1737.* His residence and burial place were probably at Cutchogue, in the town of Southold. “Little Neck,” bequeathed to the oldest son, is now owned by the families of Terry, Case and others.†

He was three times married: I. about 1712-13, to PATIENCE . . . , b. 1694, d. Oct. 2, 1719, æt. 25. II. in 1720, to DOROTHY OSMAN, of Southold, b. 1700, d. June 20, 1754, æt. 54. III. Oct. 2, 1754, to KATHARINE, widow (prob. of John) PENNY.* Of his six children, four (2 s. 2 dau.) appear to have been by the first marriage, and two, (1 s. 1 dau.) by the second.

Of the three daughters, HANNAH probably m. in 1735-6, her second cousin JOSHUA WELLS III., (s. Joshua II. and Joanna,) and d. Dec. 20, 1748. Her four children are given under the descendants of Joshua I., younger son of the first William and grandfather of her (prob.) husband. PATIENCE is doubtless the “Patience Wells” who m. in 1740, RICHARD HOWELL III., only s. of Richard II. (3d s. Richard I.) and

* Index of 1698, p. 128-9, and annot. I have not been able as yet to trace the parentage of either of these three wives. The families of Booth, Hallock, Horton, L'Hommedieu and Rider furnish, on the Index of 1698, a possible Patience for the first wife; and on the same Index are twenty-six Osmans. John Penny was prob. son of John (who d. 1713) and his wife Mary (who d. 1733) of Southold.

Deborah, and great-grandson of Edward Howell, one of the first settlers of Southampton, L. I., in 1640.*

The three sons, Henry II., Obadiah and Abner, divide the descendants of Henry I. in the male line, into three branches, the first only of which is given in this chapter: the second alone occupying the five following chapters.

CHAPTER VI.

OBADIAH, SECOND SON OF HENRY I.

BADIAH WELLS,^{4,16} second son of Henry I.,^{3,3} was born at Southold, in November, 1716, and died at Montague, Mass., May 27, 1800, æt. 83 years 6 months. He left his birthplace at the age of eighteen, perhaps earlier, and never returned to it as a residence, New York City being his home during most of his long life. The earliest document I find in regard to him is as follows:

“NEW YORK, 23d June, 1735.

“Received from Obadiah Wells the sum of Five Pounds for which he is to travel or trade as a Pedler within this Province for the space of one Twelve Month to commence from the date hereof

“Treasurer” *

He did not, however, “travel” long in this capacity, for in August, 1736, we find him married to his first wife MARY CONKLING, at East Hampton, L. I., and in 1738, he was admitted a freeman of the City of New York.† He soon after joined with others from Long Island and Connecticut in the purchase and settlement of a large tract of land in Union County, New Jersey, (now Union Village,) which was called by the settlers "Connecticut Farms." * Between 1742 and 1746 he returned to New York, and established himself in business, as appears by sundry advertisements of 1746 and following years.

Dec. 29, 1746. "Glazing and Painting and Paints made fine, dry or ground in oil to be sold by the Hundred or lesser Quantity; also Lead drawn and Lead Glass to be sold; likewise Painting Brushes made and sold and Ready Money for Hog's Bristles by Obadiah Wells, living in the Sloat, behind Mr. Henry Cruger's in New York."

May 16, 1748. "OBADIAH WELLS, Glazier and Painter, who lately lived in the Sloat and kept a Shop of Dry Goods in Hanover Square, is now removed to the House where Daniel Gautier, deceased, lately lived, in Prince's Street, and continues to carry on his Business as usual. Said Wells has a Negro man to dispose of." †

"The Sloat" or "Sloat Lane," no longer in existence, appears on early maps of New York as a short L-shaped street, opening south-west into "Smith," now William St., and south-east into Hanover Square; both this and "Prince's St." being nearly identical with the present Beaver St. on either side of William. ‡

Jan. 16, 1749. "To be sold by Obadiah Wells in Prince's Street a likely negro boy about 20 years of age, is well recommended and suitable for either town or country. Also a parcel of cordage, spunyarn, Iron Pots, and sundry sorts of European Goods. Likewise a quantity of square timber, short cedar shingles for shipping off, and six foot cedar clapboards. Glaziers' lead, bar, sheet, white and red ditto, Spanish Brown, Verdegrease, Indian red, spruce yellow and divers sorts of other colours. Glass by wholesale

These lotteries were for religious purposes, the one at Turkey, (now New Providence,) N. J., being for the erection of a parsonage.

For five years his business appears to have been prosperous, and he had acquired considerable property in the city.‡ But in the Post Boy of Dec. 23, 1751, a meeting of his creditors is called "to consult what is most proper to be done to secure their interest," and in the same paper Mr. Wells has the following notice :

"Whereas the creditors of me, the subscriber, are desired to meet to-morrow, and I being in a very poor state of health, this is to desire them that they would be pleased to appoint one or two of their number to call on me at my

On the 17th of January following, (1752,) he made an assignment of his property to Philip Livingston,* John Lawrence and William Alexander, for the benefit of his creditors; and a sale is advertised Oct. 22, 1753, of “three good dwelling houses situate on Golden Hill in the East Ward,” “three small dwelling houses situate in Dye street in the West Ward,” and “two small dwelling houses, a stable and three lots of ground in fence, situate also in the West Ward fronting the Common and adjoining to Adam Vandenberg’s lot, being part of the estate of Obadiah Wells conveyed by him,” &c.†

His failure seems to have been by no means ruinous, as his younger brother Abner and his son Henry were entered at Princeton College in this very year, (1753,) and no less than twelve deeds and mortgages to and from him are recorded between 1755 and 1763, all of city property. Most of these convey one or more of seventeen lots between Chatham and Cross (now Park) Sts., and on both sides of Orange (now Baxter) and Mulberry Sts., the consideration varying from £15 to £100 per lot.‡

The property described as “situate on Golden Hill” was between Gold and Pearl Sts., on John St., one-sixth part of it, having sixteen feet on the latter street, being conveyed by the assignees to George Harrison, May 14, 1754. The whole had been leased for fifty years by David Clarkson to Obadiah Wells, April 27, 1750, for £120 and a yearly rent of £3 6s. 8d. The deed to Harrison is in L. XXXVIII. 144. N. Y. (G. E. S.)

He was living in Mulberry St., and probably in business in 1763,* perhaps with his son Dr. Henry, who is said to have had an apothecary's shop in New York about that time; but no transactions in city lots are on record between this year and 1784. His two children, who lived beyond infancy, were married and settled in New York, the daughter in 1760, and the son in 1764. I find the following curious advertisement in a Long Island paper of Feb. 25, 1765:

In 1766, a new field of adventure opened to father and son, full of promise, but barren enough in the long run. They became in that year patentees, with a number of others, of two of the tracts of land granted by Sir Henry Moore, Governor of New York, in what is now Vermont, then a territory long disputed between New York and New Hampshire. The first of these grants, dated July 22, 1766, conveys to twenty-three persons, among them "Henry and Hannah Wells," 19,500 acres, being "a tract of land on the west side of the Connecticut River, in the County of Cumberland, erected into a township by the name of Brattleboro,"* and now covered by the prosperous village of that name. The second, of nearly the same date, (July 23,) conveys to Obadiah Wells, John and Benjamin Stout, (father and uncle of Mrs. Henry Wells,) and others, an adjoining tract of 23,000 acres, called the township of Hartford.†

The occupation of these grants in 1767-8 soon brought the patentees into collision with the settlers claiming under New Hampshire. On the New York side, the controversy, which had been carried on from 1750, was supposed to be closed by the Order of the King in Council, July 20, 1764, fixing the West bank of the Connecticut River as the boundary line.‡ But many of the New Hampshire settlers were not at all disposed to acquiesce in a decision which required them to take out new titles from New York; and from 1769 till the close of the Revolution, they kept up a series of riots, and acts of lawless violence, accompanied often with great cruelty, which made the condition of the New York settlers far from comfortable. New York, on becoming a State, endeavored in vain to maintain her authority; and the Continental Congress, though passing repeated declarations and resolutions in support of her claims, and pledging itself to maintain them, never dared to take any decisive measures to put down the outrages of the "Green Mountain Boys," of whose services against the common enemy they stood in too great need, and who were encouraged by prominent men of Massachusetts and Connecticut. New York finally relinquished her jurisdiction, receiving a trifling compensation for the sufferers from the mob; and out of the chaos of disorder and misrule arose finally the State of Vermont.*

Neither Mr. Wells nor his son Dr. Henry took any active part in this controversy, as far as I can learn, but both suffered considerably from it. The same curious perversion of history which has lost sight of the outrages of the "Green Mountain Boys" in their Revolutionary exploits, has created the belief that all the New York settlers were "tories." As far as Obadiah Wells and his son were concerned, there is not only no foundation for such a belief, but it is expressly contradicted by their acts. The former is the first signer of a declaration by the people of Brattleboro, April 25, 1777, "that all the People in this Town are Loyal to the State of New York, and think

On the death of his wife in 1780, Mr. Wells removed from Brattleboro to Suffield, Conn., thence to Glastenbury, in the same State, and a year or two later to New York, where he resided at least part of the time during the rest of his life. ‡ His last residence, however, was in Montague, ANANIAS CONKLING, a glass manufacturer, came with JOHN, probably his brother, † from Nottinghamshire, Eng., to Salem, Mass., in 1637-8, and there set up a glass-factory, near which he and John had four acres each. CHAPTER VII.

HENRY WELLS OF MONTAGUE.

HENRY,^{5,29} third son of Obadiah Wells^{4,16} and Mary Conkling, and the only son who attained to manhood, was born at Connecticut Farms, now Union, Essex Co., New Jersey, June 14, 1742. From 1745-6, however, his home, for twenty years and more, was the City of New York, then covering somewhat thinly a space of three-fourths of a square mile between the Battery and City Hall, with a population of less than ten thousand.* He could not have been much more than eleven when he began his college course at "Nassau Hall," then lately removed from Elizabeth, N. J., to Newark, and thence, in his second year, 1854-5, migrating to its present home in Princeton. Here he took his first degree, Sept. 28, 1757, at the age of fifteen.† Among his classmates were his uncle Abner Wells, (only four or five years his senior,) Nicholas Bayard of New York, Peter Faneuil of Boston, Dr. Alexander McWhorter, Stephen Sayre, afterwards Lord Mayor of London, and Joseph Reed, the "incorruptible" member of the Congress of 1776.‡

* The Northern boundary of the city was a line of palisades erected this very year (1746), as a defence against the French and Indians of Canada, and extending from James Slip to the City Hall, and thence to the foot of Warren St. (Watson, Ann. N. Y., 191.)

† "Quarto Kalendas Octobris Anno Erae Christi MDCCLVII." See ch. XI., Diploma of Abner Wells.)

‡ It must be remembered that a college course in America, a century and more ago, was very little like what it is in our day; and on the other hand that very few had the benefits of it, such as they were. "It was a feather in a young man's cap," says Cooper, "to have gone through College in 1755." But he gives on the

He must have gone immediately on his graduation, to New Haven, to begin the study of medicine with the celebrated Dr. Hull, under whose instruction he remained four years.* In 1760 Yale College conferred on him, then a student of eighteen, the honorary degree of M. A.,† and in the following year he returned to New York, and there continued his studies till 1764.

He is said to have studied Divinity for a short time after this, and to have added the business of an apothecary to his early medical practice in New York.‡ But his seven years of study were hardly over, when he was married, in the old Dutch Church on Nassau St., May 28, 1764, to HANNAH STOUT, (daughter of John Stout and Elizabeth Sibley of New York,) b. New York, Feb. 19, 1747. They lived together within a few months of half a century.§

"I read all of the New Testament, in Greek; several of Cicero's Orations; every line of Horace, Satires and Odes; four books of the Iliad; Tully de Oratore, throughout; besides paying proper attention to Geography, Mathematics, and other of the usual branches. Moral Philosophy, in particular, was closely attended to, senior year, as well as Astronomy. We had a telescope that showed us all four of Jupiter's moons. In other respects, Nassau might be called the seat of learning. One of our class purchased a second-hand copy of Euripides, in town, and we had it in College all of six months, though it was never my good fortune to see it, as the young man who owned it was not much disposed to let profane eyes view his treasure. * * * We had a tutor who was expert among the stars, and who, it was generally believed, would have been able to see the ring of Saturn, could he have found the planet, which, as it turned out, he was unable to do."

§ See Note A, STOUT. The Dutch Church (that of her parents,) was the one so well known for many years at a later day by its use as the N. Y. Post Office. The marriage licences for Dr. Wells and his wife respectively, are dated May 4 and 26, and the record as quoted in Valentine's Manual reads: "Henry Wells & Hanna Stout, May 29, 1764," an error of a day in the date. They must have attached themselves soon after to the "First Presbyterian Church," on the "De Peyster Garden," N. side of Wall St., between Nassau and Broadway. In this church, which stood from 1719 to 1814, their two children b. in N. Y. were baptized. (See that record, infra: Doc. Hist. N. Y., III, 403, 460, 484; N. Y. Marriage Licences, 1764; Lamb's Hist. N. Y., 505.)

Dr. Wells was hardly more than twenty-five, and his wife twenty, (and the mother of two young children,) when they set out for their new home in the wilds of what is now Vermont. The town of Brattleboro, of which he and his wife were two of the twenty-three patentees, had been partly settled from New Hampshire as early as 1751-2; but after the question of boundary had been decided by the King in favour of New York, new grants were taken from that Province, and one of the names on this very patent is that of a New Hampshire settler of 1852, Col. (afterwards Judge) Samuel Wells, who became conspicuous in opposition to the lawless bands styling themselves "Green Mountain Boys."*

The best, and indeed almost only practicable means of effecting this removal of two hundred and fifty miles into the wilderness, was by a small sloop or schooner to New Haven or Hartford, and thence up the Connecticut River by a "flat-boat." Such was their course. An old lady living but a few years since, well remembered receiving the Doctor and his family for a night's sojourn in her log house on the Connecticut, near Greenfield; they doubtless glad enough to escape from the monotony of their slow-moving boat, and she perhaps as glad of the chance which brought the visitors from the City to her lonely cottage.†

Their new home was a farm then containing not far from a thousand acres, some two miles west of the present beautiful village of Brattleboro. Here, on the brow of a lofty hill, whose crest was then crowned with the first "meeting-house" in all that region, (and is still occupied by its burial ground,‡) Dr. Wells erected a substantial frame house of considerable size, which stood almost unaltered for a century, and was finally taken down in 1875. In 1801, it was purchased from Col. Townsend, probably its second proprietor, by the late Chief Justice Tyler, who occupied it for many years. The following sketch of the place is from a letter written by Judge Tyler, March 18, 1801, a fortnight after it became his residence :

“The house is entirely secluded from the view of any neighbours. Though on the crown of a hill, it is yet in a hollow; but the necessary out-buildings give it an air of being in a little neighbourhood. It consists of an upright part, with a handsome portico; two handsome front rooms, and two handsome chambers over them. Back, is the sitting room, and by the side of it a room for the office, which has a door into the sitting room, and another out of doors, so that ingress may be had to it independent of the house; back of the sitting room a good kitchen, from whence you go into two bedrooms, one for the boys and the other for the maids; and overhead a meal granary; and over the sitting room an apartment for our hired man and boy. Back of the kitchen is a long wood-house, about twenty feet of which makes a summer wash-room; and here stands the water-trough constantly supplied with plenty of excellent water. * * * For all we live down, or rather up a lane, you will scarcely see three persons pass in as many days. We cannot see a single house from our windows, though if we climb our orchard we can see the country thirty miles around. In a word, if one can love a retired farmer’s life, here he may have it to perfection.”*

The place is little changed at this day, except by the new farm-house occupying the site of the old homestead. A more secluded spot can hardly be found than this, reached by a steep, winding, lonely road, a mile from the little hamlet of West Brattleboro,—nor a more glorious view than that of the Connecticut Valley and its surrounding mountains, from the “orchard” near the crest of the hill, or the quiet burial ground on its summit.

* For this letter, and information pertaining to it, I am indebted to an old friend, the Rev. Thomas P. Tyler, D. D., of Brattleboro, a son of the late honoured Chief Justice of Vermont. The old homestead was his birthplace and early home, as well as that of my own grandfather.

The people of Brattleboro, whatever their origin, were generally loyal to the State of New York, and Dr. Wells no doubt found a pleasant home among them, until disturbances came from without. At the first "town meeting" in the place, in March, 1768, "Henry Wells, M. A.," was chosen Town Clerk, Overseer of Highways and Overseer of the Poor. He was Town Clerk for five years, and from 1768 to his removal in 1781, he constantly held some public office. His name appears for the last time on the records as "Moderator" of the meeting of March, 1781.*

AUTOGRAPH OF 1768.

The country around, however, must have been, as Dr. Williams remarks, "a rough one for his practice,"† and in its then disturbed condition, an uncongenial residence for a man not only of culture and intellect, but Quaker-like in many of his ideas and habits, and especially a hater of broils and enmities. He appears to have taken little part in political affairs, and his medical practice, indeed, soon became quite sufficient to occupy his whole time. I find his name attached to two memorials to the King, before the revolution, in behalf of the legal government,—the only civil government, in fact,—under the Province of New York.‡

Dr. Wells took an active part, as might be expected, in the organization of the first religious society in Brattleboro, and the efforts to provide it with the services of a minister.

* Brattleboro Town Records, shown me Sept. 20, 1876, by the kindness of William S. Newton, Esq., Town Clerk. Dr. Wells was commissioned as Justice of the Peace, April 7, 1768, but never acted in that capacity. See Hall's Eastern Vermont, 725, Doc. Hist. N. Y., IV. 611, 654. His earliest autograph above is the notice of an "Intention of Marriage," Dec. 27, 1768, in the Town Records.

‡ Doc. Hist. N. Y. IV, 667, 669. The general sentiment of the people of Brattleboro in this controversy is abundantly shown in this volume.

The earliest record of such action, dated April 18 and 21, 1769, names him as one of a committee to confer with the people of the adjoining town of Guilford in regard to the support of a minister for both places; also one of the three "Assessors," the "Collector," and "the person to sue for and recover the money that shall be assessed, if need be." In the original "Covenant" of this society, Nov. 12, 1770, written on parchment, and still preserved at Brattleboro, his name is second among the seventy-nine signers, that of Col. Samuel Wells being first. In the same year, (June 12,) Samuel Wells, Henry Wells and Nathaniel Church are appointed the Committee "to agree with Mr. Reeve," the minister of this congregation from 1770 to 1794.*

Seven more children were born to Dr. Wells during his thirteen years' residence in Brattleboro,† one of them dying in infancy.‡ In 1781, he finally relinquished the magnificent estate (in acres) which had cost him so much toil and suffering, and removed to Montague, Mass., a quiet, pleasant village forty miles lower down on the Connecticut River.

* The Rev. Abner Reeve, b. Southold, Feb. 21, 1708, was eldest s. of Thomas Reeve of Southold, of Scotch descent, by his first wife Bethia Horton. Thomas Reeve m. I., 1735, removed to Bloomington, Orange Co., N. Y., 1756, and d. Brattleboro, May 6, 1798, æt. 91. His grave is in the Old Burial Ground on the hill above the Wells homestead. He is described by those who knew him personally as "a fine-looking man, well built, large and portly, dignified, yet easy and gracious in his carriage, noble and generous in mind and heart, and much beloved by his people." A son of his, the late Judge Tapping Reeve, attained much distinction at the bar, and as founder in 1784 of a long-celebrated Law School at Litchfield, Conn. The old Southold family of Reeve is still represented in Brattleboro by the descendants of the first minister. (Early Hist. of Cong. Ch. in W. Brattleboro, by the Rev. Lewis Grout, to whom I am indebted for the above account of Dr. Wells' share in the founding of that Society. See also Index of 1698, p. III.)

His family were soon settled in the house which continued to be the home of the children for eighty years. It is still standing, though no longer in possession of the family: a long, low cottage, apparently innocent of paint, (though I am assured it has been painted,) the only ornamental feature of the exterior being the Doric porches, with their pediments, cornices with triglyphs, and square fluted columns, which shelter the two front doors. The first of these (entering from the little uninclosed green at the angle of the country road) opens into a little inner porch or entry, giving access on one side to the ample kitchen, (ample in area, but not in height,) whose huge chimney forms the back of the porch; and on the other to a sleeping room. In the entry, and formed out of the shoulder of the chimney, is a wooden bench-like bin, which the Doctor kept stored with oats for the faithful horse on whose back his long journeys over the Hampshire hills were performed; and directly before this porch, and pleasantly near the oat-bin, is the "hitching-post." The second and more important porch, though perhaps less used, opens into a wide hall running through the depth of the cottage, and communicating with the great kitchen on one side, and on the other with the parlour, (probably nursery also,) with its quaint devices in wainscot, and innumerable cupboards and closets, containing once much curious glass and china, now mostly distributed in the family as relics of a long-past day.* The hall contains the stairs to the half-story above, and a door at the further end once opened upon a stoop, as it would have been called in its day, looking out on the little farm and the beautiful hills beyond,—no doubt a pleasant resting place on a summer evening, in times when rest was the reward of long days of hard toil, and every man, whatever else he might do, was a tiller of the ground.

In the associations of his new home, and the better opportunities for the practice of his profession, Dr. Wells no doubt found compensation for the visionary fortune as landed proprietor, for which he and his father had left New York. He soon acquired a reputation as a physician, especially in consultations, which made long journeys from home often necessary. Such occasional calls extended from Boston to Albany, and to New Hampshire and Connecticut, as well as to and beyond his old home in Vermont. In 1785, he was elected a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, with which he was connected until his death, most of the time as Counsellor.*

In 1802, a formidable epidemic made its appearance in Greenfield and its vicinity. "Eminent physicians," says Willard in his history, "did what they could to stop the plague. That excellent physician and estimable man, Dr. John Stone of Greenfield,† the late Dr. Williams of Deerfield, and that Nobleman of Nature, Dr. Henry Wells of Montague, were employed; the last and the first-named, mostly. The sick seemed to have the impression generally, although they had great and well-founded confidence in Dr. Stone, that they should certainly recover if Dr. Wells attended upon them, so great was their reverence for that philanthropist. The writer of this, then in his twelfth year, remembers as though it were of yesterday, the gentle manners, the mild and benevolent countenance of the good and venerable man, in his plain suit of brown, cut in the Quaker style."‡

Soon after this, and perhaps as a recognition of his services in this pestilence, Dartmouth College conferred on Dr. Wells the honorary degree of M. D., a degree not usually given in those days on completing a course of medical study.* His diploma was not the only recognition at Dartmouth of his character and attainments. Professor Nathan Smith was accustomed frequently to quote him in his lectures, and to speak of him in terms of the highest respect. "Dr. Wells," adds Dr. Alden, "in his profession attained the most distinguished rank. His natural powers were good; his medical reading extensive and judicious; his application methodical and patient. His eminent skill, however, in the management of disease, was derived chiefly from his own observation and experience. Possessing a clear and discriminating mind, and an accurate judgment, his practical deductions were remarkably just. In difficult cases, his advice was much sought and highly appreciated. Punctual in his professional engagements, courteous in his manners, modest and unassuming in his intercourse with his professional brethren, he was highly respected by the profession and the public."† Dr. Williams remarks that "Dr. Wells had the confidence of all his professional brethren throughout the country;" a fact which, considering how rarely such entire confidence is given by physicians to each other, is as creditable to his private as to his professional character.

"His habits and manners," continues Dr. Williams, "were conformable to what is called the old school of gentlemen. His dress was Quaker-like in simplicity, velvet or buckskin breeches, long jacket with flapped pockets, and broad-brimmed, low-crowned hat. He was broad-chested, and a little inclined to corpulency. I never saw him when I was not reminded of the portrait of the venerable Dr. Franklin. A miniature portrait which I have seen of the Rev. Dr. Smith, of Princeton, N. J., so nearly resembles him that his family have pronounced the likeness correct. Notwithstanding his peculiarity of dress, and general appearance, his address rather excited familiarity than awe. Many of his patients almost worshipped him, and his presence has often smoothed their passage to the tomb.

“A stranger laboring under a mortal complaint was induced to send for him, hoping that he might do something towards alleviating his distress, though he had no expectation that he could cure him. The Doctor spent several hours with his patient, who, when he left, was able to sit up and write a letter to his family physician, stating that the presence of Dr. Wells, his urbanity, cheerfulness, attention, and good sense, as evinced in his conversation, had so completely enraptured him that he had almost forgotten his complaint, and he would rather have given a fortune than not to have seen him.

“The proverb that ‘a prophet is not without honour save in his own country,’ is many times true in the life of a country physician. Even Dr. Wells was destined to know and feel it in his declining years; but the patronage and applause bestowed on him by his professional brethren remained through a long life, and after his death was transmitted to his descendants, and follows as a rich legacy which can never be lost.*

* “Dr. Wells was an honour to his age and country—to human nature—and those who in his later days would have derogated from his merits to exalt their own, were to him but as the puny shrub to the giant oak.” Willard (the historian of Greenfield) in his articles in the Greenfield Mercury of 1837-8, sent me by Mrs. Georgiana (Clapp) Leggett of Elizabeth, N. J.

“Dr. Wells was always facetious and cheerful with his patients, when their circumstances would admit of it, thus inspiring them with great confidence in their recovery. He was once sent for to a patient who was considered dangerously sick. He spent the evening at his bedside, and on his retiring to rest, before he blew out his candle, a messenger entered his room with a boot-jack in his hand, which he informed the Doctor the patient had sent in to him for the purpose of enabling him to pull off his buckskin breeches. The Doctor sent back word to him that he need be under no fear of dying for the present. The effect was most salutary upon the sick man.

“Dr. Wells was supposed to be successful in some cases of hydrophobia. I think the remedy on which he principally depended, was a preparation of mercury.”*

A singular accident, which I well remember, deprived not only Dr. Williams, but every one else, of much interesting material for a fuller account of Dr. Henry Wells. A number of his books and MSS., including valuable records of his long study and practice of medicine, in possession of his son Dr. Richard Wells, were completely destroyed by a lunatic who entered the office before daylight, one morning in 1838, and kindling a fire first with his own clothing, burned every book and paper within reach, until he was discovered.

Dr. Wells' eminence as a physician, and the love and veneration of so many friends, must have made his life in Montague a very happy one; but they did not shield him from severe trials. His large family of children, some of whom were necessarily dependent on him to the last, and the poverty of all that country in the last century, made it impossible for him to lay aside much for his later years, and he remained poor, as far as money goes, to the last day of his life, leaving for his children little besides the small farm belonging to his homestead. But a much heavier trial was the fact that four of his thirteen children were deaf-mutes, and one of these, his oldest daughter, at times insane. She died only two years before him, at the age of forty-two; the other three survived him many years. To these and other sources of anxiety, was added in his later years, the distressing and eventually fatal complaint, Angina pectoris, which made it necessary to relinquish most of his practice; a necessity which he dreaded, as did his son after him, much more from the feeling that he could no longer be useful to others, and that in some cases his immediate successors were inferior or worthless men, than from any pecuniary loss to himself.

* Amer. Med. Biog. 613. The memoir there given, to which I am largely indebted, was derived by Dr. Williams partly from the late Dr. Bachelder of Royalston, Vt., a pupil of Dr. Wells, and partly from Dr. Richard Wells of Canandaigua.

“If he should be taken from us,” writes Dr. Stone in 1808, “no man would be more missed, and he would leave no better man behind him.”

His letters to his son, Dr. Richard Wells, speak freely, but cheerfully, of the trials of his last years, and are full of devout and simple faith in God. His wife, the faithful and beloved companion of half a century, was taken from him Oct. 1, 1813, after a long and painful illness. “I am now left,” he writes to his son, “without one in the house that I can converse with. God grant that this severe trial may be sanctified to myself and all my children, and that we may be prepared to meet her in realms of bliss.”

AUTOGRAPH.

His long, useful, and peaceful life ended on the 24th of August, 1814. In a letter written only twelve days before, he speaks of himself as "rather declining," but still "riding out a mile and back" each day, while "strength, appetite, and flesh" were slowly failing.

"His funeral," writes his son Cornelius, Sept. 1, 1814, "was attended by a large concourse of people, and a great number of physicians from the neighboring towns paid him the last token of respect." His grave is in the Old Burial Ground at Montague, between those of his father and his wife. A well cut stone (dark limestone) bears the inscription,

"In Memory of Doct. HENRY WELLS, who died the 24 August 1814, aet. 72."

The wife's is, "Mrs. HANNAH, wife of Doct. HENRY WELLS, died 1 Oct. 1813, ae. 66."*

Very little need be added in regard to Dr. Wells' character and principles. His whole life, family, social, and professional, was permeated with a deep sense of religious duty. Among the few of his papers which have come into my hands is a little MS. volume of seventy pages, chiefly of family prayers,—doubtless used most of the time through the half century in which his household were daily called together for worship. Dr. Alden, in the article already quoted, says, "he was much attached to the moral and religious institutions of his country; a patron of temperance," and he might have added, a pattern of temperance in all things. But there was nothing of the severity of New England Puritanism (in some of its aspects) in his religious life. In a secluded country home, with little access to books or cultivated society, he never lost his early culture and literary taste first acquired at Nassau Hall. He was an admirable reader, and it was his great delight to gather his family in the evenings to listen to passages from his favourite among English authors,—no other than WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.*

His grandson Henry Wells of Meriden, N. H., who was several years in his family as a youth, says, "Grandfather Wells was one of the noblest men I ever knew—kind, generous, hospitable—to sum it all up, a CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN." †

Of his wife I have little information beyond her family history. One granddaughter speaks of her as "a stately dame, very proud of her high Dutch ancestry, and exacting much reverence from those around her." ‡ Others say that she retained always something of the Dutch costume, and many of the habits and tastes of her early years in New York,—among the latter a strong predilection for the service of the Church of England, and the Feasts of the Christian Year, which she had observed in the city. Although Dutch Reformed by birth, and Presbyterian by marriage, her English Prayer-Book was her constant companion through life, and her views in this respect had a considerable influence on those of her children whose homes were within reach of its services.

Of the thirteen children, two daughters died in their parents' life-time, one of them in infancy, and three others, a son and two daughters, were deaf-mutes. The remaining eight, six sons and two daughters, married and left families.

The fifth son, Richard, is excepted, as being the only one of the children for whom his father had "already done much by way of education." To Benjamin is given

To "my honoured friend, the Rev^d Aaron Gates, for him to dispose of as he shall think proper, all my Latin Greek, and French Authors, all my treatises on Physic, Surgery, Chemistry, Anatomy, Philosophy, Rhetoric and Logic," surgical instruments and office furniture.

He appoints as Executors, the Rev. Aaron Gates, Elisha Root, Esq., and his son Benjamin Stout Wells.

NOTE A.

THE STOUT FAMILY

OF NEW YORK.

THE STOUT family, first known in New York about the beginning of the eighteenth Century, were from the Low Countries, and probably descended from those who, fleeing from the persecutions of Philip II, and Alva, settled in England, mostly in the Southeastern counties, in the reign of Elizabeth. In 1603, it is said, there were one hundred thousand of these refugees in England, and they composed two-thirds of the population of Canterbury.* Many of them were early emigrants from England to the West Indies.

JOHN STOUT, Gentleman, is rated in St. James' Parish, Barbadoes, Dec. 20, 1679, for ten acres of land and five negroes.† A Power of Attorney dated March 6, 1699, is given by Abraham Walker, of St. Catharine's Parish, Jamaica, to "Thomas Childe, and John Stout of Port Royall, Gent.," to collect money due Walker in New York.‡ In the same year, letters of administration are granted by "Richard Earle of Bellemont," Governor of New York, to "Mr. Thomas Wenham of the City of New York, Merchant,"§ as trustee, on certain goods of "John Stout, late of Jamaica, merchant, in a voyage from thence to New York on board the sloop Content, Capt. Luke Gall, Commander, deceased;" reciting that the said John Stout had lately died intestate, "otherwise than what is contained in the annexed will or order," which is a letter consigning the goods to "Captaine Wenham," and beginning thus:

* Davies' Hist. Holland, I. 567, seq. On the Rolls of Leyden we find three of the name who may or may not be of this family: "Johannes Stout, Francus, matr. July 5, 1630;" "Nicolaus Philippus Stout, matr. March 13, 1683;" "Jacobus Stout, Amsterdamensis, matr. Dec. 16, 1689." (Album Stud. Acad. Lugd. Batav. 1575 to 1875, 20 L. 23 I, 23 P. L.) The name is not found at all in the early history of New England.

"S^r this comes to advice you that I not haveing my helth in Jamaica was a coming over to York in hopes that the Eare [air] might doe me Good, but God who is the Ruler and Governour of all things has been Pleased to Lay his hand on me to that degree that I am extreamly weak." *

It is not clear from either document whether he died in Jamaica or on the voyage. His widow Amerantia d. in or before 1714, in which year,

JOHN STOUT (II.), eldest son and heir, administered on the estate of "Amerantia Blagrove, deceased, late widow of Benjamin Blagrove, deceased, formerly Amerantia Stout, widow, and relict of John Stout, late of the Island of Jamaica, merchant, deceased." † And on June 24, 1714, John Stout m. in New York, Abigail Bill, prob. eldest dau. of Benjamin Bill and Geesje (or Geertrüyd, or Grace) Van Fort of N. Y., b. Nov. 13, 1695. ‡ By deed of Aug. 31, 1720, "John Stout of N. Y., mariner, and Abigail his wife," convey certain real estate in N. Y. to Jasper Busle. § They had three children, perhaps more.

NOTE B.

THE BILL FAMILY.

OF NEW YORK.

THIS family is supposed by its historian (Ledyard Bill of New York) to be the same as that of JOHN BILL of London, bapt. 1576, in Much-Wenlock, Co. Salop, Eng., first King's Printer, publisher of the works of James I, 1616, and of the Standard Prayer Book of 1636. He m. I. Anne, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Mountford, D. D., b. c. 1588, d. May 3, 1621, bur. in St. Faith's (crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral) London; and II. Joan, dau. of Henry Franklin, of Throwley, Kent.

JOHN, d. Boston, Dec. 10, 1638, m. Dorothy ———, who survived him, and is noted in 1639 as a "widow sojourning in the house of Richard Tuttell," (Tuthill, Boston 1635) and in 1640 as purchaser with her son James of the house and garden of Robert Mears (also of Boston 1635). (Drake, Hist. Boston, 245.) They had James, Thomas, Philip, John and Mary.

THOMAS, b. Eng. c. 1618, d. Boston, Oct. 9, 1696, called in 1666 "lighterman," in 1686 "innholder," 1688 "mariner," 1696 "planter," lived in Black Horse Lane, now part of Prince St.; member of 2d church, under Increase Mather, 1670, and of the Artillery Co., 1674 (1657 according to Savage), freeman 1671; m. Copp's Hill, Boston, with tombstone yet extant, and inscription "Here Lyeth Buried y^e Body of Abigal Bill wife to Thomas Bill," with date and age. By 1st mar. 2 sons, Samuel and Sargent; by 2d mar., Sarah, Mary, Thomas, Susanna, Michael, Jacob (or James), and Benjamin (this last not given by Savage, I. 177).

BENJAMIN, b. Boston, c. 1674, youngest s. of Thomas and Abigail, mentioned in his father's will of 1696; apprenticed to Dea. Robert Cumbery of Boston, a cooper, rem. prob. to N. Y., where he is on census of 1703, with wife and two children ; m. Dec. 1694, (by license of Dec. 5,) Geesje (or Geertrüyd, or Grace) Van Fort.

See N. Y. Wills, V. 84. The surname may be intended for Van Voort or Van Vorst, but is plainly "Van ffort" in the record ; the abbreviated Christian name may be either of those given above, the two first very common in Dutch records. Benjamin Bill of New York, mariner, and Grace his wife, conveyed to Garrett Ketteltass, "joyner," of the same city, June 29, 1716, a lot at the N. E. corner of William St. and Maiden Lane, conveyed to them in 1711 by one Jacob Yselsten, (see p. 87,) bricklayer, of New York. (N. Y. Deeds, XXX. 76. See Note A, above, p. 107, for deed of the same property by John Stout and wife (Abigail Bill), 1720.)

CHAPTER IX.

RICHARD WELLS OF CANANDAIGUA.

RICHARD WELLS,^{6,55} (named probably from his uncles, Richard Sibley and Richard Stout,) 5th son of Dr. Henry Wells and Hannah Stout, was born at Brattleboro, Vt., June 24, 1774. As it proved, he was the one among the seven sons to receive a professional education, following thus an old New England tradition; though his father would have given all his sons, had it been possible, a more liberal education than this one received. Richard began the study of medicine under his father, in 1792, when only eighteen, and after four years commenced his practice in Conway, Mass., (a few miles S. W. of Greenfield and Montague,) in 1796. I find the following certificate of his studies in the handwriting of his venerable father:

“ This may certify those whom it may concern that the Bearer, Richard Wells, has spent four years under my Tuition, & has since been in the Practice of Physick Six Years, & met with approbation and success in his practice in the Township of Conway, in Hampshire County, Massachusetts.

“ Montague, Sept. 6, 1802.

“ HENRY WELLS, M. M. S. S.” *

Two years after this (Oct. 18, 1804), he was elected Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society. But he did not succeed in obtaining a living in Conway, (he had married there in 1798, only two years after completing his studies,) and in 1806 he turned his steps towards Western New York, going at first alone, and after spending a few months at other places, settling in Canandaigua, at that time perhaps the largest town, certainly the most important, west of Utica. Here he remained until his death, or for thirty-five years, and attained a professional standing unequalled by any other physician of his day and place, with the exception, perhaps, of his son-in-law, Dr. Pliny Hayes. His daily journeys extended through all the towns in the neighbourhood of Canandaigua, involving an amount of toil, watching, and exposure, which few physicians of this day would consent to undergo, and which finally proved too much even for his robust health. In consultation, he was often called to much greater distances. As a student, he was by no means the equal of his father, (whose advantages of early education were denied the son,) but in induction from experience he was remarkably successful, and his treatment was generally such as to inspire his patients with the most implicit confidence in him.

In one respect, his life would be deemed by some a failure. He had not the art of "making" or saving money. Generous, hospitable, and warm-hearted to a fault, reluctant to ask even the fees which his labours and success had fairly earned,* and still more unwilling to enforce their payment from ungrateful or dishonest patients; with a large family, and many years of sickness in his household,—he never laid up anything from his large practice; and even his modest cottage, and the miniature farm on which most of his children were brought up, were only spared to him and them during his lifetime. He struggled long and hard, but in vain, to free himself from the entanglement of debt which fettered him through life. But his kindly and unselfish nature was never soured by his trials, even when arising from the dishonesty or injustice (or what he thought such) of others; and he retained through all, the thorough respect and firm friendship of the best citizens of Canandaigua,—a royal centre, in early days, of the social and professional life of Western New York.

* E. g. I remember a charge of three dollars grudgingly paid for a drive of twelve miles and back over the long "Bristol Hills," and a night's watching. A "visit" in the village brought fifty cents in those days. So my father's accounts against his patients testify.

During the war of 1812, he was commissioned as Surgeon of one of the New York Regiments, and served in that rank on the Niagara frontier. And some years earlier, with a mingling of offices more common then than now, he was for some time Sheriff of the County. He was for many years President of the Ontario County Medical Society, of which he was one of the founders, and was also a Curator of Geneva (now Hobart) College in its Medical School.* Never seeking office, he was nevertheless always much interested in public and municipal affairs; and his political opinions, of the old Federal School, were strongly held and freely expressed. In the earlier years of his Canandaigua life, when Fourth of July celebrations were matters of much more moment than now, he was often called upon to officiate in the reading of the Declaration of Independence, being, like his father, an admirable reader.

* His degree of M. D. (an honorary one) was, I think, from this College, though I do not find his name on the Triennial,—as was, in fact, the case with his father's for many years after the date of his Dartmouth diploma. It is given, however, with his degree, on the Annual Catalogues for several years before his death.

His early, if not first residence in Canandaigua, was a little cottage on Main St., nearly opposite what was then the finest house in the village, that of Gideon Granger, the Postmaster-General of that day. But before 1820, he had moved into the house which he built on his eight acre farm on Bristol St., and which was for many years a happy home to his children and grandchildren, and in the young eyes of the latter, a palace. It is still (1877) standing, and recognizable, though greatly changed. But the "eight acre farm," with its gardens, orchard and meadows, has long since been cut up into innumerable village streets and lots.

Dr. Wells' life, however unsuccessful in gaining wealth, was as active, busy and useful, as any life could be. He used to say of himself that "he had not a lazy hair in his head;" and his one great dread in approaching old age was that "he might live till his usefulness was gone." But the trait most prominent in my memory of him, next to his kindness of heart, is his thorough manliness, conspicuous both in mind and body. It impressed itself even upon a stranger at first sight. He had an utter abhorrence of all sham and pretence, even in the simplest matters of household life; and of all indirect or underhand ways of accomplishing the most desirable ends. He loved an out-door life, and all things in the natural world were full of interest to him. He delighted in gardening and the cultivation of fruit; and our two gardens, each covering an acre of ground, were noted for the earliest fruits and vegetables of the village, and one of them always brilliant with the finest of old-fashioned flowers. Next to his garden and orchard, perhaps I should say equally with them, he loved (it is not too strong a term,) his horses, whose qualities and training he thoroughly understood; and teaching his grandsons to ride well and boldly was a favourite occupation for his early morning hour,—an hour which was indeed his choicest time for either out-door or in-door occupations. He was rarely in bed after four o'clock, often rising long before that time.

From conviction as well as choice, he attached himself to the Protestant Episcopal Church, as soon as it was planted in Canandaigua, in 1816. The tradition is that an old-fashioned Christmas Eve service in a Vermont village, to which he had found his way, by the accident of being lost in the forest, made an early impression on him which he never forgot. All his children who lived beyond infancy became communicants, and all his daughters' baptisms, confirmations, and marriages took place in the old "St. John's Church."*

The best testimony, perhaps, to Dr. Wells' real excellence of character, is to be found in the love and devotion of those to whom he ministered longest as a physician,—a regard which, from the rich and poor alike, never failed him through life, and which manifested itself in his last illness, and at his death, by a thousand acts of kindness; not ceasing then, indeed, for his children and grandchildren have many a time in later years felt the benefit of it.

In August, 1840, an attack of palsy somewhat disabled him from his more active habits, but he continued his professional labours to the last. In the following year, while at Avon Springs for the benefit of the water, he had a second stroke, which, after five days of prostrating, but not painful illness at his home, ended his life, Sept. 12, 1841, at the age of sixty-seven. All his children were with him, and his last hours were peaceful and hopeful. His funeral, on the 15th, was attended by a great number of people of all classes,—but there were none, beyond his own family, who felt his loss more deeply than the poor, to whom he had given freely a great part of his life-work, and who had often experienced his beneficence in many ways.

*The old Church, (the admiration of Bishop Hobart,) after celebrating its "semi-centennial" in 1866, has given way to a far costlier one of stone, designed by Emlen Littell,—one of the most perfect and beautiful parish churches in the country, but hardly replacing the first one in the affections of the older parishioners.

Of their eleven children, three died in infancy, and six married and had families; one only now (1877) survives.

* See infra. Note B, HAYES. Dr. Hayes received his early education at Canandaigua Academy, where he was certified as a "qualified teacher" in 1806, (æ. 18), but began life as a journeyman printer in Utica, N. Y., in 1807. In 1812, after spending some years in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Easton, Md., he began the study of Medicine under Dr. Gamage, in Boston; and soon after obtained the appointment of Captain's Clerk and Acting Assistant Surgeon of the U. S. Ship Hornet, commanded by Capt. James Lawrence, in which he made the famous cruise of the Constitution and Hornet to the West Indies and South America, taking part in the action between the Hornet and Peacock. Returning to Boston in April, 1813, he resumed his studies, becoming pupil and afterwards assistant to the late Prof. John C. Warren, of Boston, and receiving the degree of M. D. from Harvard, 1815. He began his practice in Boston, and in 1815-17 was chosen a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Linnean Society of New England, the Howard Benevolent Society, the Handel and Haydn Society, President of the Boylston Medical Society, Physician of the Boston Dispensary, &c. In December, 1817, he removed to Canandaigua, N. Y., taking the place of the first physician there (Dr. Dungan), a position which he held until his death. He was a musician and composer of considerable merit; President of the Ontario Handel and Haydn Society (which he founded), and Organist of St. John's Church, Canandaigua, from 1821 till his death; and his only publication was a Manual of Instruction in Music, though he left many MS. lectures, treatises, and volumes of notes, on a variety of medical, literary, and scientific subjects. He was a thorough student in Botany, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy and Technology, and in the latter capacity, aided by an inherited mechanical genius, built in 1827, the first Railway in New York, (and one of the first in the United States,) to the pier on Canandaigua Lake. He was a frequent lecturer, and recognized authority in Western New York, in scientific matters, as well as in his own profession. In 1825 he established a Medical School at Auburn, which, through failure on the part of some of his associates, was shortlived. Among his intimate friends and associates as physicians were the late Drs. Martyn Paine of New York, and Usher Parsons of Providence, R. I., the latter a classmate.

Dr. Hayes was buried in St. John's Churchyard, New York, but in 1854 his sons removed his remains to Canandaigua. His headstone is inscribed, "The Grave of PLINY HAYES, M. D., of Canandaigua, who died in this city, July 28th, 1831, aged 42 years.

Much of Mrs. Hayes' earlier life was spent with her mother's family, chiefly at York, on the Genesee River, the country home of her maternal uncle, Judge Hayden,† who regarded her as an adopted child, and bequeathed to her part of his estate; and partly in the family of his wife's father, the Hon. John Chandler Williams, at Pittsfield, Mass., where she received most of her early education. To say that she was an accomplished and intellectual woman, greatly esteemed and beloved, will be thought very little by those yet living who knew her personally. Their remembrance of her, and yet more her numerous letters still preserved, to and from a wide circle of friends, show that her work and influence, social, moral and religious, must have been extraordinary for a life ended long before its prime. As daughter, wife, and mother, few lives have been happier or more useful, in the years allotted her. Her early death was hastened by incessant care and anxiety in the last illness of her husband, whom she survived only three months. Children:—

She had few advantages of education; but she had a natural energy, practical good sense, quickness of comprehension, and ready wit, which made up in a great measure for its deficiencies, and combined with a warm heart and kindly sympathy, made her many friends wherever she was known. But the chief memory of her long life is that of rare devotion to a trust. The two sons of Mrs. Hayes, mentioned above, were committed to her care by their mother's wish, and from that time her one great object in life was their welfare and happiness. A more thoroughly unselfish life I have never seen.

Always religiously inclined, he became in mature years a communicant of the Church, and his Christian character grew evidently deeper and stronger to the very hour of death. “It was his boast,” says his son, “during the later years of his life, that he had not an enemy in the world; and all who knew him can testify that he had hosts of steadfast friends.”

* One whose personal loveliness was a true expression of her whole character; and whose faithfulness in every duty had its reward in the home life and the Christian death, both of her husband and herself.

† Dr. Mathews became, about 1840, a partner of Dr. Richard Wells, and in 1844 removed to Rochester, where he soon attained a high standing in his profession. A patient and accurate student, thoroughly happy in scientific and philosophical research, and yet indefatigable in the labour which his large practice devolved upon him, his life was a rare example of successful energy, both in study and active duty; and with these qualities a warm heart and Christian principle were happily combined.

NOTE A.

THE HAYDEN FAMILY

OF WINDSOR AND CONWAY.

HAYDEN (Heydon, Haydon), an ancient family of Norfolk and Devon, Eng., took this Saxon name from the village of Heydon (high down or plain) in Norfolk, 14 m. w. of Norwich, near which was their earliest known residence. "Heydon Manor" and "Heydon Hall," in Eyresford Hundrud, now S. Erpingham, (at the Conquest a part of Stinton Manor, and so called in Domesday Book,) were held by the family from c. 1200 to 1567, when they sold the Manor to the Bulwer-Lytton family, by whom it is still held, and removed to Baconsthorp, where the Norfolk branch remained till 1689, generally of knightly rank, and often distinguished in camp and at Court.*

(1.) THOMAS DE HEYDON, of Heydon, b. c. 1185, d. c. 1250, King's Justice in Eyre for Norfolk, 1221, was father of (2.) WILLIAM, b. c. 1220, d. 1272, whose 2d s. (3.) JOHN DE HEYDON, an eminent Judge in Devonshire, Edw. I. (1273), was founder of the DEVON LINE, from which sprung the Haydens of Windsor and Conway. His s. (4.) ROBERT HAYDON of Boughwood, near Ottery St. Mary, Devon, changed the first vowel of the name to a, a spelling from that time peculiar to the Devon family. He m. Joan —, and in 1291, deeded his estate of Boughwood to his son (5.) HENRY, who m. Julian (a?) Havdon, dau. and heiress of a cousin, Haydon of Ebford. (6.) WILLIAM, s of Henry. (7.) ROBERT, s. of William. (8.) JOHN, s. of Robert. (9.) HENRY, of Boughwood and

* The account of the Hayden family in England I take wholly from the recent researches of one of the Braintree, Mass., branch, the Rev. William B. Hayden, long of Portland, Me., now of Southport, Eng., in a valuable pamphlet just received (Sept. 1877) from him, "The Heydons in England and America," London, 1877, to which I must refer for fuller and very interesting details, especially descriptions of Cadhay and other family seats, monuments, &c., in both the Norfolk and Devon lines.

Ebford, 1397, s. of John. (10.) JOHN, 1st s. of Henry, inherited 1407, d. s. p., and was succeeded by his bro. (10 B.) WILLIAM, of Lymston, who had Richard (d. y.), Geoffrey, John, Richard again, and William. (11.) RICHARD, 4th s. of William, 1476. (12.) RICHARD, s. of Richard, 1522, m. Joan Trent, dau. of Morice, of Ottery St. Mary, and had 3 s., Thomas (of Boughwood and Ebford), John, and George, and a dau. Joan, w. of John Coram of Ottery. George, the 3d s., was father of John, Sheriff and Alderman of London, and a great public benefactor. (13.) Sir JOHN HAYDON, 2d s. of (12) Richard, became an eminent lawyer and Bencher of Lincoln's Inn,* founder of the present endowed parish and grammar-school of St. Mary Ottery (the birthplace and school of Coleridge, whose father was its Master) and of other existing public charities; m. Joan Granville, dau. and heiress of Hugh, of Cadhay, which estate with its grand country-seat near Ottery thus came into the family. The domain (400 acres) and mansion have passed by descent in the female line to their present possessor Sir Thomas Hare, Bart. Sir John Haydon d. s. p., 1587, and his nephew and intended heir, (14.) THOMAS, (s. of his elder bro. Thomas, and Joan, dau. of Richard Weeks of Honeychurch,) who m. Christiana, dau. and heiress of Robert Tidersleigh of T., Dorset, having pre-deceased him, the Cadhay estate came to (15.) ROBERT, s. of Thomas and Christiana, living in 1620, who m. Joan, dau. of Sir Amyas Paulet of George Hinton, Somerset. (16.) GIDEON, eldest s. of Robert, m. Margaret, dau. of John Davy, Esq., of Creedy, and had 7 s. 5 dau. His eldest s. (17.) GIDEON, gr. s. (18.) WILLIAM, and gr. gr. s. (19.) GIDEON, res. at Cadhay, and on the decease of William in 1722, (his s. Gideon d. 1706) the estate passed to the female line. The name in the Devon family still remains in England; the well known painter Haydon belonged to this branch, and it is now represented by Frank Scott Haydon, Esq., of the Record Office, Chancery Lane, London.

(17.) JOHN, WILLIAM and JAMES Haydon or Hayden (the latter spelling gradually superseding the older form in this country) who came to Boston and Dorchester in 1630-32, from Devon, were in all probability three of the seven sons

* "Though his profession was the law, which is a kind of vocal war and tongue combat, yet his practice was peace, whereof he was a studious conservator among his neighbours. He did not blow the coal of discord for his own private advantage, and to warm his hands thereby (as some mean sneaking spirits often do); but his business was to extinguish contention and prevent its growing into a flame." (Prince, Worthies of Devon.) His arms in the chancel of Ottery St. Mary (for description of which see Flihu Burrett's "Walk from London to Land's End," p. 143) are, Ar. 3 bars gemels az., on a chief gu a barrulet dancette or. Crest, a bull sa. vulned by a lion of the first. (A seal of 1315 has the motto I EO AY, PRIS ET MORIER.) An elaborate monument near the altar, and an inscription in Latin verse in the south porch (which he built) also commemorate "that most glorious man, John Haydon, Knight." (Heydon Family, 38. The arms engraved in Stiles' Windsor, p. 653, belong to the Norfolk branch.)

of (16) Gideon of Cadhay.* John went to Braintree, Mass., where his descendants still remain, and James to Charlestown, Mass.

(17.) WILLIAM HAYDEN, of Devon, came to Dorchester, Mass., with the first settlers; (prob. in the Mary and John, May 30, †) 1630; was made freeman in 1634; served under Capt. Mason in the famous Pequot fight of 1637, and saved the Commander's life in the storming of the Fort, an exploit thus commemorated by Wolcott in his poem of 1721:

" But fate, that doth the rule of action know,
Did this unequal combat disallow;
For quite too much to force one man alone,
To beat an army, take a garrison,
Sent HAYDEN in, who with his sun-steel'd blade
Joining the General, such a slaughter made,
That soon the Pequots ceas'd to oppose
The matchless force of such resistless foes."

The "sun-steel'd blade" which turned the tide of battle is now in the collection of the Connecticut Historical Society at Hartford, and the deed is represented by one of the crests on the book-plate of his great-great-grandson, Dr. Moses Hayden, a fac-simile of which is given on p. 150. William Hayden became a proprietor at Hartford in 1637, and at Windsor in 1639, building in the latter place a house on the site since occupied by the residence of the late Ezra H. Hayden, South-east of Hayden Station. Beyond, on the West, he opened in 1654 a stone quarry (now called "Rocky Hill") which furnished most of the early gravestones and foundation walls of Windsor. In 1657-8 he is one of 17 making the first troop of horse raised in Connecticut. In 1660 he is charged 7s. for a "short seat" in the Old Windsor Meeting House. But in 1664 he removed to Fairfield, and the next year to Killingworth (in each place becoming a proprietor) and represented the latter place as Deputy to the General Court in 1667; and there (at Killingworth) he died, Sept. 26, 1669. His first wife (name unknown) d. July 17, 1655, and he m. II. in Fairfield, MARGARET, wid. of William WILCOXSON. By the first marriage he had two sons, Daniel, b. Sept. 2, 1640, (who alone perpetuated the name,) and Nathaniel, b. Feb. 2, 1642; and a dau. Mary, b. June 6, 1648, m. Judah Everts, of Guilford. ‡

BOOK-PLATE OF DR. MOSES HAYDEN, 1742-1813.

NOTE B.

THE HAYES FAMILY

OF WINDSOR AND GRANBY.

FOUR families of the name of HAYES are given in Savage's great work, "The Genealogical Dictionary of New England,"* as having settled in New England during the seventeenth century. These are,

1. THOMAS HAYES, at Milford, Ct., 1645.
2. NATHANIEL, at Norwalk, Ct., 1652.
3. JOHN, at Dover, N. H., 1680.
4. GEORGE, at Windsor, Ct., 1682.

All these, it is said, are of the same stock, and from SCOTLAND.† The latter is certainly true of the families of Dover and Windsor.

Both the Dover and Windsor families have long preserved a tradition in regard to their origin, which really belongs to the far more distinguished family of HAY, of Scotland. The story runs thus: "In the reign of Kenneth III., of Scotland, A. D. 980, the Danes, who had invaded Scotland, having prevailed at the battle of Luncarty, near Perth, were pursuing the flying Scots from the field, when a countryman and his two sons appeared in a narrow pass, through which the vanquished were hurrying, and impeded for a moment their flight. 'What,' said the rustic, 'had you rather be slaughtered by your foes than die honourably in the field? Come, rally, rally!' And he headed the fugitives, brandishing the yoke of his plough, and crying out that help was at hand; the Danes, believing that a fresh army was falling upon them, fled in confusion, and the Scots thus recovered the laurels which they had lost, and freed their country from servitude. The battle being won, the old man, afterwards known by the name of HAY, was brought to the king, who, assembling a parliament at Scone, gave to the said Hay and his sons, as a joint reward for their valour, as much land on the River Tay, in the district of Gowrie, as a falcon from a man's hand flew over till it settled, which, being six miles in length, was afterwards called ERROL; and the king, being desirous to elevate Hay and his sons from their humble rank in life, assigned them a coat of arms, which was argent, three escutcheons, gules, to intimate that the father and two sons had been the three fortunate shields of Scotland. The stone on which the falcon lighted is still to be seen in the 'Carse of Gowrie,' in a small village called Hawkstone."*

* Vol. II. p. 387.

† Hon. Rutherford B. Hayes.

The tradition, however embellished by time and romance, has, undoubtedly, a foundation in truth; and the lordly family of Hay have borne, for at least eight hundred years, not only the "three escutcheons gules," but a broken ox-yoke as part of their crest, two Danes in armour as their supporters (one of them with a plough-staff, or plough-paddle, as the Scotch call it), and the apt motto, "RENOVATE ANIMOS."†

There are several versions of the story besides the above, but all agree that the name "Hay" or "Hayes" came from this incident, some adding that it was part of the reward of valour; others, that it was the war-cry of the father.‡ One of the best authenticated accounts gives the name of the hero as John de Luz.§

If the Hayeses of New England, who have so long cherished this tradition, have really any claim upon it, they must, of course, be of the same stock as their more illustrious countrymen, and their name originally the same. Some of them claim to have documentary proof of this identity of origin; but this proof I have not seen. It is certain, however, that the surname of the Scotch family of Hay is found in several different forms. For six generations from William, to whom King William the Lion granted the lands of Errol, and who died 1170, the name was De Haya. In 1451 it first appears as Hay; and in the seventeenth century it is given (perhaps by mistake) as Hays.|| Again, the only English family of the name of Hayes whose arms are recorded (of Arborfield, Berks) have the "three escutcheons gules" as the principal bearing, and the falcon crest.¶ But among the Scotch arms emblazoned in the Library at ABBOTSFORD, are those of Rutherford (family of Sir Walter Scott's mother) and HAYES, the latter a cross between four stars, with the falcon crest, and motto, "RECTE."

GEORGE HAYES, the common ancestor of the Windsor and Simsbury (or Granby) family, was born in Scotland, somewhere about 1650; went from his home, about 1675, to Derbyshire, where, it is said, he had an uncle, with whom he lived for a time; * thence to London, to see the great capital, and there, hearing of the new "land of promise" in the western world, embarked for New England. He is first known at Windsor, in 1682. He is said to have married, several years earlier, his first wife, SARAH (whose surname is illegible on the Windsor record), † and to have had by her three children; but only one is recorded, George, born in Windsor, March 26, and died April 3, 1683. His first wife died March 27, 1683, and he married, second, Aug. 29, 1683, ABIGAIL DIBBLE or DIBOL (as on early tombstones), ‡ daughter of Samuel (fourth son of Thomas, from Dorchester, Mass.), born in Windsor, Jan. 19, 1666. Soon after 1697 he removed to Simsbury (the part of the town now Granby), where he was taxed in 1700 and afterwards, and is enrolled as freeman from about that date. § He died there before 1734, probably near 1730.

By his second wife he had ten children, four sons and six daughters :

	1.	Abigail,	b. Windsor,	Aug. 31, 1684.
	2.	Daniel,	b. " "	April 26, 1686.
	3.	Sarah,	b. " "	Jan. 22, 1687.
	4.	Mary,	b. " "	Jan. 6, 1689.
	5.	Joanna,	b. " "	Oct. 2, 1692.
	6.	George,	b. " "	March 9, 1695.
	7.	William,	b. " "	June 13, 1697.
Prob.	}	8.	Samuel,	b. Simsbury,
order.		9.	Thankful,	b. " "
		10.	Dorothy,	b. " "
					} 1699 to 1705.

All these ten children of George Hayes married, and the four sons, and probably all the daughters, left families. The names of the ten, with the daughters' husbands, and signatures of all except Daniel, are given in two deeds recorded in Simsbury; in one of which, dated 1734 (March 22), the subscribers call themselves "brethren of Daniel Hayes," to whom they convey a certain parcel of land in Salmon Brook Street, next the house which Daniel built in 1720. In the other they mention "our honoured father, George Hayes," then apparently deceased. The six daughters married as follows :

ABIGAIL m. Paul Tompkins.

SARAH m. John Gosard (s. Nich. and Eliz.), b. Windsor, 1682.

MARY m. William Rice.

Of the four sons:

I. DANIEL, the eldest, was taken prisoner by the Indians, at Simsbury, in 1707, at the age of twenty-one, carried to Canada, and kept in captivity seven years; finally released by earning his own ransom (for which he was afterwards reimbursed by order of the General Court of Connecticut),† and returned to Simsbury. The romantic story of his sufferings and heroism in his seven years' captivity is given in Phelps' History of Simsbury, Hartford, 1845, and again in "A Long Journey," printed by me in 1876 (Portland, Me.). He lived in Simsbury, now Granby, to the age of 70, a prominent citizen, much respected, often in public offices, and of great excellence of character. The inscription on his tombstone (the oldest in the Granby (Salmon Brook) Cemetery) runs as follows: ‡

Wilmington, Vt., Dec. 3, 1853, aet. 76; m. Montague, Nov. 13, 1796, PARSONS CLAPP, (s. of Daniel Clapp, (a descendant of Roger of Dorchester, 1630,)* and Abigail Root,) b. Montague, July 26, 1772, d. Wilmington, Vt., Feb. 27, 1855. Both are buried in the Old Cemetery at Montague, with headstones giving simply names and dates as above.

Parsons Clapp was a farmer and mechanic, of feeble health, and in middle age crippled by an accident, so that their life was one of many trials, much softened however in their later years by the filial duty of their children. The oldest son, especially, used his wealth freely for their comfort and happiness. Both husband and wife were much respected by all who knew them well. They had ten children:—

PHOEBE—SEVENTH GENERATION.

I. HENRY WELLS (CLAPP),^{7,139} eldest son, b. Springfield, Mass., April 20, 1798, d. Greenfield, March 17, 1869; bur. in the New Cemetery at Greenfield. At the age of sixteen, he left his home to become the apprentice of a goldsmith and jeweller in Newark, N. J., and continued steadily at his work for six years, never seeing his home during the first five years of his apprenticeship. In 1819, he writes to his uncle, Dr. Richard Wells, that "he is receiving $65 a month as a journeyman jeweller, wages which no other journeyman in the large manufactory has had for eight years, and nearly double that received by those working with him, he only being able to do the finest parts of the work, especially chasing." In 1820, he entered into business for himself, and in ten years became a man of wealth, retiring from his work in 1833, and removing in 1835 to Greenfield, Mass., where he built and planned the beautiful home still occupied by his family. Here he lived thirty-four years, taking a deep interest in all public affairs, and contributing freely in money and effort to every enterprise for the good of the place. He was President of the Connecticut River Railroad, the Franklin County Agricultural Society, the Greenfield Bank, Franklin Savings Institution, Greenfield Cemetery Association, Gas Company, and Library Association, some of which institutions originated with him, while of others he was one of the founders. He took a deep interest in the work of the Church, and for the beautiful parish church at Greenfield (St. James'), a fine early English edifice of stone, two thirds of the cost, or $8,000, was given by him. The large cutlery works near Greenfield, one of the most important manufactures in that region, was established by him in company with several others. He was a lover of books and pictures, of all things contributing to household comfort and refinement, and emphatically "a lover of hospitality;" deeply interested in historical and family memorials and local antiquities.* One who knew him intimately says, "he was loyal to friends, and capable of strong and enduring attachments. The influence which he exercised was not acquired by efforts to be popular, but resulted from native force and sagacity, persistent will, and recognized integrity." † He was proverbial in Greenfield, both for generosity, and exact justice in all business affairs.

For the ten years preceding her death she was the last survivor of Dr. Wells' thirteen sons and daughters. Her whole life was spent at Montague. She m. there, Jan. 3, 1810, DANIEL ROWE, (s. of Daniel Rowe and Lucretia Austin of Montague,) b. Litchfield, Conn., Dec. 10, 1782, d. Montague, Oct. 26, 1863, æt. nearly 81.* He was a farmer, a man highly esteemed and respected, through a long life in the same little village.

The memory of Mrs. Rowe is a very pleasant one, not only to her own children, but to all who knew her well. Her life was one of faithful and loving discharge of every duty, first in her own household, next to the deaf-mute brothers and sisters whose infirmities made them in their later years more or less dependent on her watchful care, and then to all whom she could help or comfort by word or act of kindness. A deep religious principle entered into and ruled every part of her long life, as it did her father's; and bore its fruit not merely in good works, but in a quiet, cheerful evenness of disposition especially noticeable in her later years. She was a communicant of St. James' Church, Greenfield, for many years.

She left five children, all b. and still living in Montague, four of them in the same house which was her's for so many years.

THE DEAF-MUTES.

Four of the thirteen children of Dr. Henry Wells were deaf-mutes. The eldest of these, HANNAH,^{6,53} mentioned in ch. VIII. (p. 126) d. in the lifetime of her parents; the other three survived them many years. These were XIII. WILLIAM,^{6,62} 7th s. and youngest child, b. Montague, Nov. 13, 1789, d. there Aug. 30, 1866, æt. nearly 77, buried with the three deaf-mute sisters, in the Old Cemetery at Montague.

The three younger of the deaf-mute children retained possession of the homestead and farm, in accordance with the will of their father and the wish of his other children, and there spent their long and silent, but by no means useless lives. "Uncle William" was an industrious and intelligent farmer, (in his younger days also a shoemaker,) and "Aunt Katy" and "Aunt Abby" were noble housekeepers in their own way, the way of the last century, in which they were brought up, and from which they never varied. Carpets, stoves, and other such modern necessities, were unknown to the quaint simplicity of their household as I last saw it, in 1854. They had of course no such opportunities of instruction as have been provided of late years for their class. Their sign-language was an arbitrary one of their own invention, but wonderfully intelligible to those at all intimate with them; and their intelligent comprehension of things outside their own silent home was equally remarkable. This was particularly the case with the brother, who went from home much more than the sisters, and once (before the days of railways) made the long journey to Canadaigua, N. Y., to visit his brother "Doctor Dick;" a visit of some months, which formed an era in his quiet life, and of which he delighted to tell, in his own way, to his latest years.

They were much respected and esteemed, notwithstanding their infirmities, by the people of the little village where their whole life was spent, and where they maintained to the last a character unsullied by any unworthy act. The thoughtful kindness of their brothers and sisters in Montague, and of their nephew Henry Wells Clapp of Greenfield, kept them supplied with every comfort which their primitive way of living permitted, and guarded them against many of the dangers incident to their infirmity. Their life, spent together for near three-quarters of a century, and for almost half a century alone together, without a person in the house who could speak or hear, was still on the whole a happy one; and, as is often the case with deaf-mutes, they were usually full of mirth and glee. As they grew older, their relatives would have been glad to take them to their own homes; but they clung to the old homestead, and it was only after the death of the two sisters, and when disabled by paralysis, that the brother was removed to the house of his sister Mrs. Rowe to end his days.

There is something very singular in the fact of four out of thirteen children being thus afflicted. I know of no circumstances in the family history which help to explain it. "Their father," says Dr. Richard Wells in a letter to Dr.

Cogswell of New York, in 1817, “cherished the hope that the system of the Abbé Sicard, of which rumours had reached him, would ultimately bestow on his children those faculties of which Nature had deprived them; and this belief cheered his declining years, and solaced his last hours.” But such advantages never came to them.

NOTE B.

THE ROWE FAMILY.

TWO principal families of the name of ROWE are found among the early colonists of New England,—John, of Gloucester, Mass., 1651, and Matthew, of New Haven, Conn., about the same date. The Montague family are undoubtedly of the Connecticut line.

MATTHEW ROWE, of New Haven, d. May 27, 1662, w. unknown, had 4 s. 2 dau., Elizabeth, Daniel, John, Hannah, Joseph, Stephen. Only John and Stephen survived childhood.

JOHN I., 2d son of Matthew, b. April 30, 1654, m. July 14, 1680, Abigail Alsop, dau. of Joseph Alsop I. of New Haven (from Eng. 1635), and Elizabeth Preston (dau. of William, of Giggleswick, York, Eng., and Dorchester, Mass., 1635), b. Sept. 4, 1656; and had 3 s. 3 dau., John, Matthew, Stephen, Abigail, Hannah, Sarah.

JOHN II., eldest s. of John I., b. Oct. 23, 1681, was probably the father of JOHN III., of Suffield, Conn., b. c. 1710, who m. Joanna ———, and had 7 ch., all sons.

DANIEL I., youngest s. of John III., b. Suffield, Dec. 13, 1744, d. Montague, April 21, 1839, was an Iron Merchant in Litchfield, Conn., from 1769 to 1798, when he removed to Montague; a staunch Churchman in the old parish of St. Michael, Litchfield, under Bishop Seabury; "strong, and of untiring energy, and a stern sense of right." He m. Jan. 22, 1769, LUCRETIA AUSTIN, b. Suffield, Jan. 27, 1750, d. Montague, April 25, 1832, and had 11 ch., of whom DANIEL II., b. Litchfield, Dec. 10, 1782, d. Montague, Oct. 26, 1863, m. CHAPTER XI.

ABNER, YOUNGEST SON OF HENRY I.

ABNER WELLS,^{4,20} third son and youngest child of Henry I.,^{3,3}—the only child by his third wife Katharina, (wid. of John Penny,) and half-brother of Obadiah,^{4,16} the father of Dr. Henry Wells of Montague,—was the founder of a numerous branch of the family in Southwestern New York and Northern Pennsylvania, of which I can give but a very imperfect account.*

Abner Wells was born at Southold, Nov. 13, 1737, and died at Wellsburgh, Tioga (now Chemung) Co., N. Y., Sept. 21, 1797, æt. nearly 60. He graduated at Princeton College, Sept. 28, 1757, in the same class with his nephew Dr. Henry Wells, being then nineteen.† He inherited one-half of his father's personal estate; resided in Southold at the census of 1776, in which he is named, with his wife and seven children; and was one of the Southold signers of 1775 in support of Congress.‡ Some years after the Revolution, he removed with his third son, Judge Henry Wells, to Tioga county, where the latter had acquired a large tract of land

* Chiefly from letters and notes by J. Wickham Case, Esq., and Capt. Benjamin Wells, of Southold; Benjamin F. Wells of Wellsburgh; Mrs. Aug. P. Roosa of Elmira; and J. Albert Wells of New York, through his son William H. Wells.

† His Diploma, in the possession of his grandson Benj. F. Wells of Wellsburgh, is written with much pains-taking penmanship on a sheet of parchment eleven inches by nine; "datum Aula Nassoviæ Neo-Cæs. quarto Kal. Oct. MDCCLVII;" and signed by "Wm. Smith, pro hac vice Præses," and six other Trustees. I have had it photographed as a curious relic of that day.

by purchase from the State of New York; and where all the children of Abner, except the eldest son, finally settled.*

Abner Wells married at Southold, Dec. 10, 1758, MARY CASE, daughter of Benjamin (s. of Henry, s. of William) Case of Southold, b. Southold, c. 1741, d. Wellsburgh, April 21, 1806. Both are buried in Wellsburgh.† Of their eight children, (five sons and three daughters,) all but the youngest son married and left descendants. All were born at Southold.

CHAPTER XII.

JUSTICE JOSHUA AND HIS ELDEST SON.

JOSHUA WELLS,²⁶ —the younger of the two sons whose descendants divide the Southold family of Wells into two great branches,—was born in Southold in 1664, and died there in 1744, æt. 80, surviving his elder brother William nearly half a century. In the Rate List of Southold, 1683, being then nineteen, he is assessed for £ 81.* Various deeds with his name are recorded from 1684 to 1715.† He is generally known as “Justice Joshua,” having been a magistrate for many years.‡ He seems to have been also a carpenter, as the will of Capt. Horton, Dec. 30, 1699, puts his son David “apprentice to Mr. Joshua Wells” till he comes of age, “Mr. Wells to profit him in his reading, and learning him to write, and instructing him in carpenter work.”§ He was of course a farmer as well, inheriting, like nearly all the sons of early settlers, a large landed estate, lying in great part, it would seem, in Mattituck and Aquebogue, and still held by the family. His grave is near those of his father and brother in the old ‡ J. Albert Wells^{7.176} of New York, has a volume entitled “Acts of Assembly passed in the Province of New York from 1691 to 1725. Examined and Compared with the Originals in the Secretary of State’s Office. G. L. R. Printed and sold by William Bradford, Printer to the King’s Most Excellent Majesty for the Province of New York, 1726.” It contains the autograph “Joshua Wells his book,” which may be Justice Joshua or his son Joshua II. churchyard of Southold village. By the universal tradition of Southold, as well as of his descendants elsewhere, he was a man worthy in all respects of his father, whom he succeeded not only in some of his public duties, but in esteem and influence, especially after the early death of his elder brother William II. left him the only representative of the first William.

Justice Joshua married, at Southold, Jan. 19, 1686, HANNAH TUTHILL, second daughter of John Tuthill II. and Deliverance King, and sister of Elizabeth, the wife of his brother William. She was born at Southold, Nov. 7, 1667, and died there, July 27, 1752.* They had fourteen children, six sons and eight daughters.

I can trace here only some of the descendants of the six sons, and those chiefly in the male line. Of the daughters I have no further account than is noted on this page. The personal knowledge and innumerable family papers which have enabled me to compile the Memoir thus far, are not available for the history of the younger branch, which is made up from correspondence with a few of its many living members, the Southold Index of 1698, and MS. Notes from the unpublished Index of 1775. The genealogy thus collected, and not verified by personal intercourse, must necessarily be very brief and imperfect, often incorrect, more often fragmentary, and almost wholly wanting in biography. I only print it in the hope that this mere outline may incite some descendant of each of the six sons of Justice Joshua, familiar with the old homes and traditions of the family, to write a full history of his own line.

* I add an extract from his MS., giving a lively sketch of his early life as a pupil and teacher:—

"I had some advantages over my youthful associates; such as a select library of eleven volumes,—'The House that Jack Built,' 'Tom Jones,' 'Robinson Crusoe,' 'The Picture Alphabet in Verse' (which is still fresh in mind), &c. Study was my favourite occupation; but as soon as I was old enough to drive cows and ride a horse, I was kept at home during the summers. A careful estimate shows the entire value of my school books to be $460, not including a new Spelling Book; besides which, they were the Child's Instructor, the New Testament, the Westminster Catechism, the American Reader, Webster's Selections, Daboll's Arithmetic, Dwight's Questions and Answers in Geography, and "The Monitor," this last used by the highest class. . . I taught school some eighteen winter terms; it was not in those days a lucrative occupation, the teacher's wages averaging $27 a month, and he boarding himself. As an illustration of the state of society, and also of my government, I may add that the little stock of paper, quills, and pencils which I kept to supply my scholars, and the pennies they brought in exchange, remained safe in my unlocked desk from week to week; and I never had to call my pupils to their lessons, nor to use corporal punishment. . . I never saw the inside of an Academy or College, having been born and brought up to the heavy toil of a farmer."

The building of a canal soon brought population and patients, but for a long time his life was one of hard work without much remuneration. CHAPTER XVII.

FREGIFT, YOUNGEST SON OF JOSHUA I.

FREGIFT. This curious name, spelled with one e in all old records, and on his tombstone, was bestowed on the sixth son of Joshua I. by his mother, "because he was the youngest," * not only of her six sons but of her fourteen children; the eldest son, Joshua II., being at this time a man of twenty-three. Fregift Wells^{3,18} was born at Southold, April 21, 1714, and died there, Nov. 26, 1785. His gravestone in the old churchyard is inscribed,

"Deacon FREGIFT WELLS, who died Nov. 26, 1785, in the 72^d year of his age and 15th of his Office.

"True peace with God and man he e'er pursued
He sought the Church's weal, his neighbour's good
The loving parent and to Christ a friend" †

JONATHAN HORTON of Southold, youngest s. of Barnabas I., one of the earliest settlers of Southold, from Mousely, Leicestershire, England, whose house of 1649, still standing though considerably altered, is described and engraved in the "Horton Chronicles." Capt. Jonathan was b. Feb. 23, 1648, and d. Feb. 23, 1707. He is recorded as "Captain of the first Company of Cavalry in Suffolk Co., in 1693;" is assessed in 1675 for £171 10s., and in 1683 for £440, the largest assessment in the town. The inventory of his "goods and chattels" (personal estate) at his death amounts to £304 5s. 3d. His will of Feb. 21, 1707 mentions ten children. According to the Horton Chronicles, he had eleven, but the order and some of the dates there given are uncertain.*

VII. MERTABEL,²⁷ 5th dau., b. 1666, d. Southold, Aug. 26, 1742; m. as early as 1685, JOHN TUTHILL III., eldest s. of John II. and Deliverance King (see Ch. II, p. 26, and III, p. 37), and bro. of Elizabeth and Hannah, wives of William II. and Joshua I. He was b. Feb. 14, 1658, and d. Nov. 21, 1754, æt. 96. In 1685, Mary (Wells) Mapes, mother of Mertabel, deeded to John Tuthill and wife "land at Cutchoque; bounded East by the highway; West by the sea," doubtless as a marriage-portion. John Tuthill III. was a Member of the Colonial Assembly of New York in 1692-4-6-8, and Justice; "a wise and useful man, in public life from 1690 to 1740; an extraordinary natural arithmetician, always using chalk to solve every problem, and from this familiarly called 'Chalker John.'" The names of five children are given on the Index of 1698, but there were probably others.

1. John (Tuthill) ^{3:32} b. c 1683 6, d June 24, 1743, m. Eliz (dau Jona.)
2. James " ^{3:33} b. c 1685. [Horton.]

45. P. 239, running-title. For "Samuel, second," read "Daniel, third."
46. P. 247, l. 4. For Frederick "S." read Frederick "A."
47. P. 233, third foot-note (†). This curious book consists of 120 leaves about 6x4 inches in size, sewed together at the short end. About twenty pages are occupied with records of the families of Daniel I. and his son Jeremiah, from which I have printed (pp. 233-5 above) all that is of any value, and accounts, chiefly of building or repairing the "meting hous" and "parsnedg houes" from 1731 to 1761. Nearly all the rest is filled with a long-forgotten short-hand text, supposed until now to conceal family records or other matters of value proportioned to its mystery. After much patient study, the key to the riddle was found by Mr. George E. Sibley, in an obsolete system of "Tachygraphy" by one Thomas Shelton, London, 1671; and revealed only a series of Scripture texts and comments by some clergyman in 1691-3, perhaps the Rev. Joshua Hobart, successor of the Rev. John Youngs at Southold, 1672 to 1716.

The most curious, and perhaps most ancient part of the book, is comprised in the first six pages, and is a graphic account, apparently by an eye-witness, of a Protestant demonstration in London against Catharine of Braganza, Queen of Charles II, and others accused of complicity with the pretended "Popish plot" of 1678. Whatever its origin, the account must have been written not long after the reputed murder of Sir Edmondsbury Godfrey in that year, though this MS. may of course be a copy of later date. One or more leaves at the beginning are wanting. Of the remainder I give what I have space for here.

"First marched six Whifflers [pipers or fifers] in Pioneers caps & red waistcoats: 2. A Bellman ringing his bel &c & with a loud & dolesome voice crying all y^e way Remember Justice Godfry: 3. A dead Body representing Justice Godfry in y^e habit he usually wore & y^e carvat wherwith he was murdered about his neck with spots Blood on his Wrists, Breest & Shirt & whit Gloves on his hands, his face pale & wan, riding upon a whit Horse & one of his Murderers behind him to keep him from falling, in y^e maner as he was carried to Primrose-hill: 4. A Priest came next in a Surplic & a Cope Imbroidred with Dead mans Sculs & Bones & Skeletons, who gave out pardons very plentifully to all who would murder Protestans, proclaiming it meritorious: . . . Lastly the Pope in a Lofty Georgious Pageant, representing a Chair of State covered with Scarlet, y^e Chair being richly Embroydred & Fringed & bedekt with Golden Balls & Crosses; at his Feet was a Cushion of Stat & two Boyes sat on each side y^e Pope in Surplices with White Silk Banners painted with Red Crosses & Bloody Consecrated Daggers for murthering Protestant Kings & Princes. . . At his Back stood y^e Divil, his Holinesses Privy Councillor, frequently Charessing, Hugging & Whispering him all y^e way & oftentimes instructing him aloud to destroy his Majesty, to contrive a pretended Presbyterian Plot, & to fire y^e City againe, to w^{ch} purpose he held an Infernall Torch in his hand; The whole Procession was attended with over 150 Torches & Flambaus by order, but their was so many more who came in Voluntiers as made number to be several Thousands. Never were y^e Balconies, Windows & Houses more numerously filled nor y^e stree's more thronged with multitudes of peopel all expressing their abhorrence of Popery with continuall shouts & exclamations so y^t in y^e whole progress of the procession by a modest computation it is urged their could not be less than 200000 spectators. Thus with a slow and solemn stat in some hours they arrived at Temple-bar where the Houses semed to be converted into Heaps of Men Women and Children who were diverted with variet of excellent Fireworks: It is known y^t Temple-bar since its rebuilding is adorned with feur satly Statnes of Stone . . . y^e statue of Queen Elizabeth was adorned with a Crown of gilded Laurel on her Head & in her hand a golden Shield with this Motto inscribed their on, The Protestant Religion, Magna Charta. Several lited Torches were placed befor her and y^e Pope being brought up rear y^e Gate y^e Song following was sung in parts betweene one who represented y^e English Cardinall Howard and another y^e peepel of England

“ Cardinal Howard
From York to London town we come to talk of Popish Ire
To reconcile you all to Rome and prevent Smithfield Fire

The Peopel Answer.
Ceas Ceas to Norfolk Cardinal

For loe beneath Queen Besses feet
You fall you fall you fall
Now God preserve Great Chals our King
And cke all Honest men
And Traytor's all to Justice bring
Amen Amen Amen

[Here the Pope is thrown into "a very great Bonefier"]

"with such a prodigious Shout of Joyful Spectators y^t it might be heard far beyond Sommerset House [the Queen's Palace] & we hope the sound ther of will reach all Europe. The same eveing there were grea Bonfires in most streats of London & universall Acclamations Long live King Charles & let Popery perish & Papists with Plots and Counter-Plots be ever Confounded as they have hitherto beene to which every honest English man wil redily say Amen."
